Satellite Fails to Orbit, So Gemini Launch Is Scrubbed

BY HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Launching of the Gemini 6 astronauts on man's first attempt to catch and join an orbiting satellite was postponed indefinitely today when their Agena spacecraft target was lost in space.

Flight Director Christopher C. Kraft Jr. scrubbed the launching of Walter M. Schirra Jr and Thomas P. Stafford when it was determined that the Agena apparently crashed into the Atlantic shortly after launch at 10 a.m. EST by an Atlas booster.

When a tracking station in Australia reported "no joy, no joy" in futile attempts to find the Agena, Kraft called the mission off at 10:54 a.m.

At the time, the countdown on the astronauts' Titan 2 rocket was progressing on schedule toward an 11:41 a.m. launching.

Wait Until 1966

The failure meant that Schirra and Stafford probably will have to wait until next year for another try at the rendezvous and docking mission, completion of which is critical to this nation's plans to land men on the moon.

As the astronauts watched from their own spacecraft on another launch pad 6,000 feet away, an Atlas blasted the Agena aloft precisely on time at

Appleton National Guard Selected for Intensive Training

Infantry, Howitzer Companies in Waupaca, Clintonville Notified

MILWAUKEE AP—National Guard units from Appleton, Waupaca and Clintonville have been placed among 26 state guard units ordered for intensive training to prepare for possible active duty mobilization.

Gov. Warren P. Knowles Sunday announced the list of units to be reorganized into the First Brigade for merger with a Minnesota National Guard division in event of an active-duty callup.

Included are the First Battalion, 127th Infantry and infantry company, from Appleton, and Company A of the First Battalion, 127th Infantry from Clintonville, and Battery C, Second Howitzer Battalion, 120th Artillery, of Waupaca.

About 4,500 men from throughout the state are involved in the stepped-up training program which will include 72 training drills per year or about six per month. Gov. Knowles said the selections were made on basis of preparedness and geographical location.

High Priority

The brigade would become one of three under Minnesota's 47th Division should it be mobilized. The Minnesota division in turn is one of three designated as high priority forces by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in his recent orders for reorganization of Guard and Reserve units.

Knowles emphasized he did not consider the action as a mobilization at present.

He told officers at Wisconsin's 32nd Division headquarters here Sunday, "I am sure you will agree that an accelerated training program is much more acceptable to employers and families than a partial mobilization, as was the case during the Berlin crisis of 1961 and 1962."

More than half of Wisconsin's "Red Arrow" division of 8,200 guardsmen will be shifted into the select force for priority for

Red Casualty Toll Mounts as Seige Goes on

Defenders Send Combat Units Into Viet Cong Barrage

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The defenders of Plei Me sent out combat patrols today while the Viet Cong continued to rain mortar shells and machine-gun fire into the besieged camp for the seventh day.

Vietnamese army sources estimated that 153 Communist guerrillas had been killed by air strikes around the special forces camp 210 miles northeast of Saigon and another 100 had been slain in ground action.

A U.S. officer who went out on patrol from Plei Me said he counted 100 Viet Cong bodies. He said some had been chained to their automatic weapons.

Relief Column

A relief column consisting of a government regiment with a spearhead of armor had advanced to within about four miles of the camp by tonight after beating off an ambush and killing an estimated 250 guerrillas at Plei Ya Dran, a village on the way. Government casualties were reported light.

One informed U S source in Pleiku said the major fighting appeared to be over, even though the Viet Cong maintained their positions around the camp.

A U S medical helicopter braved the ring of enemy machine guns around the post to bring out a wounded American and four wounded Vietnamese. U S spokesmen said casualties continued light among the garrison of 300 Montagnard tribesmen and 10 to 12 U S advisers.

Armor Spearhead

The relief column, spearheaded by armor, apparently was well prepared for the ambush before the government force left Pleiku, 25 miles north of the camp.

Advance elements of Vietnamese rangers were airlifted

Legislators Hopeful for Adjournment

MADISON (AP) — The fall meeting of the 1965 Wisconsin Legislature resumed today with leaders still hopeful that the fourth week will be the final one.

Main reason for quitting at week's end with plans to come back in April appeared to be financial. By Friday the lawmakers will have used up all but a day or two of their 110-day $15 per diem expense allowance. Any continuation of the fall meeting will mean legislators will be losing money.

Republican Gov. Warren P. Knowles has not fared well in the major legislation he asked the GOP-controlled Senate and Democratic dominated Assembly to pass when he addressed lawmakers for the opening of the fall term.

Certain to be held over until spring are bills calling for bonds to build highways, road safety laws and a uniform beer drinking age limit.

As the week opened, lawmakers awaited a report from the Senate's Welfare Committee. The group will recommend passage or rejection of an Assembly-passed fair housing bill, a highly controversial subject. The governor has called for passage of the proposal.

Rhodesians Ready To Greet Wilson

Prime Minister Has Elaborate Security for Important Mission

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Thousands of Africans streamed out to Salisbury airport today for the arrival of British Prime Minister Harold Wilson on his mission to prevent the colony's white rulers from seizing independence.

Women predominated in the crowd. Many had babies strapped to their backs. Some had torn branches from the purple flowering jacaranda tree to shade themselves and their babies from the midday sun.

The crowd was orderly and gave an impression of extreme patience, but there was little laughter. Police officials hoped there would be no racial clash at the airport when Wilson arrived.

Elaborate Security

Elaborate security precautions have been taken, and crowd control apparatus was being kept in the background but ready for an emergency.

There were reports some police units had dogs and tear gas.

Police patrols were beefed up in the city's Negro townships. Four Africans were arrested

The award was made by the five-member committee of the Norwegian Storting — Parliament. The prize consists of a gold medal and a cash award of $51,788.

Since the prize was first awarded in 1901 it has been given to 52 persons and eight institutions.

Parachute Fails, Airman Plunges 2 Miles to Death

SUPERIOR (AP)—An airman fell more than two miles to his death Sunday when his parachute failed to blossom out properly in a skydiving stunt.

The victim, Airman 2.C. Richard L. Coldin, 22, Montgomery, Ind., was killed outright as he plummeted into a farm field eight miles east of here.

Coldin, stationed at Duluth (Minn.) Air Force Base, was scheduled to be discharged in two weeks, military authorities said. He was jumping with a private Superior skydiving club when the accident happened.

Inter-American Forces Go Into Santo Domingo

Move Brought on By 'Tense Situation' In Rebel Territory

INTER-AMERICAN—3E P 1

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — Troops and tanks of the Inter-American Peace Force moved into the rebel sector of Santo Domingo today to help restore peace to the tense city.

Provisional President Hector Garcia-Godoy asked for the patrols because of "the grave situation" in the city, an official peace force announcement said.

Violence stemming from continuing bad relations between rebels and the military chiefs has resulted in at least nine deaths in the past week.

It was the first time the peace force, made up mostly of U S. and Brazilian troops, had entered the rebel zone on an operation of this kind.

Other units fanned out through the rest of the city.

Rift Between Military, Sukarno Deepens

House-to-House Search for Reds In Jakarta by Indonesia's Army

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The Indonesian army continued its house-to-house search for Communists in Jakarta today as disagreement between President Sukarno and the military apparently deepened.

Army troops supported by tanks and armored cars sealed off a residential area and searched each of the houses for Communists, documents and arms.

Sukarno on Saturday at a conference with all leading military and civilian officials warned that the army-led anti-Communist campaign should be discontinued and law and order immediately re-established throughout the country.

Sukarno said he needs a quiet atmosphere to collect facts in order to find "a political settlement" for the crisis that has gripped this nation following the Oct. 1 coup attempt.

The new army chief, Maj. Gen. Suharto, replied that he will comply with Sukarno's command to restore order. But he said if the president needs facts, the army will provide them to prove that the Communists were involved in the coup.

The defense minister and armed forces of all elements Haris Nasution, called on Sukarno to implement the presidential decision to restrict the activities of all political and mass organizations which supported the coup.

Nasution, in his first meeting with his general staff since he escaped with leg injuries from a rebel assassination squad, also called on Sukarno to purge the armed force of all elements involved in the attempted coup.

Government Infiltrated

Jakarta radio said Nasution told his chiefs that the so-called "Sept 30" rebel movement had infiltrated government bodies and agencies long before the coup attempt.

Radio Medan, in north Sumatra, said that 400 members of the Indonesian Communist party burned the party flag on the outskirts of Medan, denounced their party and announced its dissolution in the area.

The west Java National Front organization was reported to have temporarily dismissed members of the Communist party, the pro-Communist Partindo party and their affiliated organizations.

The official news agency Antara said the dismissed Communists also lost government posts.

Radio Jakarta announced today the appointment of the army public relation director, Brig. Gen. Suhardjono, as head of Indonesia's telecommunications, radio and television services.

The radio said the appointment was made by Maj. Gen. Suharto.

89th Congress' Record Related In P-C Series

As first session of 89th Congress passed into history, one fact stood out. It was already one of the most productive in history.

Congress, under proddings of President Johnson, poured forth enactments that will affect lives of every American.

From medical care for elderly to lower income taxes, from a many-faceted attack on poverty to refurbishing U. S scenery, Congress put its imprint — and LBJ's — on what Johnson hopes is evolving into the "Great Society."

Just what was done is explored in a five-part series starting in today's Post-Crescent.

First installment, on page A-10, is concerned with over-all view. Subsequent articles deal with pensions, Social Security, and health legislation; far-flung antipoverty enactments, including urban problems and beautification; big educational programs, and voting rights and immigration.

India, Red China Clash Prior To Afro-Asian Summit Parley

ALGIERS (AP) — India and Red China clashed violently Sunday night at a meeting of the preparatory committee for the Afro-Asian summit conference, diplomatic sources reported.

Red China has demanded the indefinite postponement of the conference, due to open Nov 5. India has led the opposition to the Chinese demand.

Chinese Ambassador Tseng Tao told the 15-nation committee that Indian intrigues were dividing the Afro-Asian world, the sources said.

Tseng accused India of plotting to bring the Soviet Union into the conference against the wish of the "anti-imperialist camp." He also said India had helped to create an atmosphere unsuitable to an Afro-Asian solidarity conference by "aggressive acts" against Red Chinea and Pakistan.

Tseng also complained that the Algerian government had invited U N. Secretary-General U Thant to the summit meeting without consulting the preparatory committee.

Indian Ambassador R. Gobhurdun told Tseng "It ill becomes a country guilty of naked aggression against India to come here and preach Afro-Asian solidarity."

Informants said he warned Tseng that if he continued his "polemics" in the committee, India would raise the Chinese Communist involvement in the Kashmir conflict and in the short-lived Red uprising in Indonesia.

The meeting adjourned after hearing a report from the Algerian government that a majority of the Afro-Asian nations have declared their readiness to attend the summit.

The committee was expected to leave a final decision to the Afro-Asian foreign ministers' meeting here Thursday.

Meets Conservative Objections

Religious Liberty Plan Faces Council Revisions

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican Ecumenical Council's religious liberty declaration was brought back to the assembly today, revised to meet some conservative objections.

But the controversial declaration, strongly supported by progressive prelates from North America and Western Europe, remained essentially intact in its basic point — that all men have the right to worship according to their conscience.

Bishop Emile de Smedt of Bruges, Belgium, presented the revised declaration to the council today as it resumed work after a nine-day recess. Final voting on the declaration will start Tuesday.

Preliminary Vote

The declaration was revised over the past month, following a preliminary vote of approval by 1,997 to 224 on Sept. 21.

Bishop de Smedt, a member of the group that wrote the declaration and made the revisions, told the prelates in St. Peter's today:

"If the declaration shall be proclaimed by the council, it will open new ways for the free exercise of religion in the world. The Roman Catholic Church will find, by right and by deed, conditions that will permit it to fulfil its own mission."

Major revision concerned the insertion of clarifications on what the concept of religious liberty meant. One such revision sought to emphasize that this liberty, as dealt with in the council's declaration, concerned civil and social rights without entering into the question of religious truths.

In other words, the declaration holds that individuals have the right to freedom of worship but that in upholding this right the council is not saying all religions are equal. Roman Catholics believe theirs is the one, true Church founded by Christ.

Weaken Catholicism

Conservatives who opposed the declaration had argued during council debate that the declaration could be interpreted as meaning that one religion is as good as another. They said the declaration would, therefore, weaken Roman Catholicism.

Bishop de Smedt, speaking of the clarifications worked into the revised text, said a new subtitle had been added to the declaration to show that it deals with "the right of the person and of the community to social and civil liberty in religious matters."

"Therefore, we are not concerned with relations between man and god, nor those between the Roman Catholic faithful and Church authority, but relations among men in the sphere of civil society," he said.

89th Congress Acts Touch Most Lives

Vast Range of Legislation Creates Budget Topped Only During War

BY WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tidal wave of legislation that reaches into almost every segment of American life is the legacy of a Congress that President Johnson has labeled—at its midpoint—the most effective in history.

During its first session, the 89th Congress swept into law a vast range of Johnson proposals to spur American education, combat poverty, insure the nation's elderly against the economic ravages of illness, cut excise taxes, and boost Social Security levies.

It acted to cut scarce silver out of quarters and to make more gold available for international exchange. It moved to curtail scenery-hiding highway billboards and offer a helping hand to the arts in America.

And to do all this, it appropriated more money than any Congress since World War II. The grand total is around $118 billion. That is second only to the $147 billion appropriated in 1942, with America at war.

Social Security Boost

If you are a wage earner, you're getting some income tax relief, but you face a boost in your Social Security tax payments next year. So does your employer.

And your share of the national debt is bigger than ever. By next July, the total is expected to be $322.5 billion—or $1,627 for every man, woman and child.

Congress has boosted the temporary national debt limit to $328 billion.

During the current bookkeeping year, interest on the debt will total about $11.5 billion, up $500 million from last year's figure.

Total appropriations are up about $12 billion from the figure voted by the previous session of Congress.

Defense Spending

Defense spending is up about $800 million. And about $2.4 billion of the defense budget was voted specifically to pay for the war in Viet Nam.

Two revenue steps that may have the most direct effect on you are a tax cut—and a tax increase.

Social Security taxes are going up by about $5 billion next year to finance increased pension payments and medical insurance.

That means an increase of $103 in Social Security levies for every worker who earns more than $6,600 next year. Employers face an increase, too.

Another boost of $13 is in prospect in 1967, $33 more in 1969. By 1973, if the law passed this year stands unchanged, the worker will be paying $365 a year, his employer matching it.

For the typical wage earner, increased Social Security taxes will eat up about 60 per cent of the income tax cut he got from the last Congress.

Increases Expected

This year's tax reduction was in excise taxes—a total cut of $4.7 billion in three stages. The first step already is in effect.

But the tax cuts don't automatically go to you as a purchaser. They were levied at the manufacturer's level. President Johnson has told the Commerce Department to prod manufacturers who have not passed on the reductions.

Pass On Reduction

Johnson's economic advisers still are keeping an eye on the retail-level impact of the tax-cutting measure.

They figured by mid-July that some 75 per cent of the immediate reduction, or about $1.7 billion a year, had been passed on in lower consumer prices.

Excise reductions were noted in the prices of items ranging from automobiles to home permanents to mechanical pencils.

Then, when 1966 automobile prices were announced, the Federal Reserve Board reported they had been adjusted downward to take into account the excise tax cuts—but they also reflected the additional cost of newly introduced safety features.

The result, the board said, was a price range about the same as that a year ago.

Tax reductions on automobiles and telephone calls will not take their final downward step until Jan. 1, 1969.

Further Reductions

The automobile excise was cut from 10 to 7 per cent—an average of $70 on a new car—in the first stage. The later reductions will peg the tax at a permanent one per cent level.

If the full impact of the excise tax cuts on other items is passed on to you as a consumer, a $35 suitcase should cost you $3.50 less; a $129.50 television set should be $10 cheaper than before.

Despite the reduction, Americans still are paying more than $10.5 billion in annual excise taxes that remained untouched—mostly on liquor, cigarettes and gasoline.

If you're planning a trip abroad, you may well feel the impact of a congressional step aimed at one of the government's big economic problems—the outflow of U.S. gold.

Finance Bills

Congress has enacted a series of banking and finance bills designed to ease that problem. One of them eliminates a requirement that the Federal Reserve System maintain gold stocks equal to 25 per cent of the deposits it holds from member banks. The effect is to free nearly $5 billion in gold which now can be used to redeem U.S. dollars held by foreigners.

Another measure is more likely to bring the gold drain problem to the doorstep of many Americans.

If you go on vacation overseas, you can bring back duty free purchases worth no more than $100 at retail. That's about $67 less than the old system, based on wholesale prices. At one time, the limit was $500 in wholesale value.

Johnson figures that will keep at home about $60 million a year in U.S. dollars that would otherwise have been spent abroad.

One Bottle of Liquor

Taking it one step further: Tourists now are allowed to bring home only one duty-free bottle of low-priced foreign liquor.

Another close-to home reminder of the busy 89th Congress will be in your change pocket soon. The coins you use will be different. By early next year, you'll probably be carrying sandwich-style quarters of copper-nickel alloy, with pure copper cores.

Silverless quarters already are being produced at the Philadelphia mint. The mint also will produce sandwich style dimes, and half-dollars with reduced silver content.

The old quarter was about 90 per cent silver, and had a metal value of about 24 cents. The new one is made of raw materials worth about a penny.

Conserve Silver

The administration said the coinage change was necessary to conserve silver for other uses.

You'll also be seeing soon the impact of certain other congressional steps:

—If you drive a car, the $3 billion authorized for federal aid on interstate highway construction will some day speed your travel. It is the largest one-year authorization to date for work on the 41,000 mile system of superhighways.

—If you're in the service, you have been receiving since Sept. 1 a share in a billion-dollar military pay raise. It provides increases ranging from 6 per cent for officers with more than two years service to 33.7 per cent for a corporal who has been in uniform less than two years.

—If you are a businessman, a bill Johnson called "the sleeper" of the congressional session may help put into your hands the fruits of industrial research. That $60-million, three-year measure is designed to create federal-state pools of technical information and help industries swap business know-how. It is intended to help small businesses which cannot afford to conduct expensive research on their own.

—Cotton farmers, for the first time, will receive direct price support payments. Growers who cut their current acreage allotments by at least one-eighth will qualify for direct government payments of nine cents a pound on the cotton they do produce.

Otherwise, the farm program Congress approved is in general the same as those of recent years. And it is expected to cost the taxpayer about $4 billion for the next growing season.

Next: Health and pensions.

Byrnes Calls for More Facilities For Medicare

Proposes Measure To Interest Private Capital in Building

WASHINGTON — Rep. John W. Byrnes (R-Wis.) said today that many elder citizens will not receive full benefits under the recently enacted federal medical care program because of a lack of medical services and facilities "out where the old people are."

He also has proposed an amendment to the Medicare program in order to provide an incentive for the expansion of expert nursing homes. His measure would provide that, under the government's Medical Care for the Aged Program, a nursing home furnishing post-hospital extended care would be paid on the basis of a reasonable charge for the care, rather than on the basis of actual cost, as is provided under the present law.

"It is clear from information coming to my attention that the number of post-hospital extended care beds available will be woefully inadequate to meet the needs and demands of our older citizens when this phase of the program goes into efect on Jan. 1, 1967. We must therefore act now to encourage a substantial expansion of such facilities in the next 14 months," he said.

Encourage Private Risk

"Present law, by limiting government payments to the 'actual cost' of furnishing the services discourages private investment and risk taking in this area. We must eliminate this discouragement to private investment by providing payment on a reasonable charge basis. This is the purpose of the bill I have introduced today."

The congressman, ranking Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, in a statement to the House, called attention to a recent state survey in Wisconsin which showed that adequate extended-care facilities (nursing homes) and home health services were not available in many counties.

"In addition to 90 days of hospitalization, the new law provides for 100 days of extended care in nursing homes and post-hospital home health services up to 100 visits. The latter services include nursing care and therapy as home health aids," Byrnes said. "However, in Wisconsin which is a typical state, 17 counties have no nursing-home beds. Twenty-one counties do not have any physical therapists and over 50 counties have no home-nursing agency. Old people in those counties will be unable to take advantage of the benefits the law provides because facilities and services are simply not available."

Survey Lacking

The congressman said he was "shocked" in calling this situation to the attention of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, (HEW), to find that no action has been taken by the federal government to survey the situation nationwide. He said he has asked that such a survey be undertaken at once and he has also urged the Department of HEW to take the lead in advising the states and local governments now to develop and expand health facilities and services to meet the needs of old people when the new law becomes effective.

"It will be a mockery if, after all the promises which have been made, many of our old folks are deprived of the services which the law promises. While I proposed another road toward health care for our aged citizens, this is the one Congress chose to follow. It behooves us now to prepare at once to fulfill the responsibilities the law imposes on all of us."

16-Year-Old Idea Vital Part of Gemini Flight

Light-Weight Fuel Cells Without Smoke, Flames, Might Provide Energy in Future

BY JOHN BARBOUR

NEW YORK (AP) — The Gemini 5 spacecraft darted across the summer night like a small excited star — with a hot, 16-year-old idea in its tail.

Probably within the coming decade, that idea will be providing power for more and more of travelling America.

The Gemini 5 power came from fuel cells — flameless, smokeless, noiseless fuel cells.

They produce electricity, with hardly a moving part. And the only exhaust is water.

It is a neat, simple and beautiful idea. But it will be some time — if ever — before fuel cells produce the power for your home. Still it's nice to think about.

The compact package in the basement or the hall closet — not so much as a whisper loud, fueled by gas tanks delivered each month, unaffected by storms or winds.

Light In Weight

The fuel cells that powered Gemini 5 weighed less than an astronaut. Yet they did the job of a ton of storage batteries.

The beauty of it is that it uses a natural and highly efficient phenomenom: the oxidation of an element — actually the quiet burning of hydrogen gas. It borrows the electrons freed temporarily in this chemical reaction, uses them as electricity, and returns them to complete the reaction.

The silence, portability, smokelessness and smoglessness of the fuel cells makes them ideal for some uses — a low weight power for battlefield radar; for trucks that operate on electricity indoors; for isolated, unmanned stations like beacons or buoys.

More Efficient

Perhaps eventually, some fuel cell manufacturers hope, the silent, smogless power may operate America's cars and trucks, for fuel cells are by far more efficient than internal combustion engines.

Ironically the fuel cell is an old idea. The first one was made by Sir William Grove in 1839. By the end of the 19th century it was being widely hailed as the power source that would warm and run American homes within a few years.

It still hasn't happened.

But 20th century knowhow and materials are producing efficient fuel cells like the ones on Gemini 5 — and manufacturers expect to begin testing their industrial and domestic uses.

The Gemini fuel cells worked most simply of all — by joining hydrogen and oxygen, using the freed electrical energy, and in the end producing water.

Contradicts Maxim

It's a contradiction of the old maxim — "neither a borrower, nor a lender be."

The fuel cell does both — and profitably.

It has two stations — call them the borrowing and lending stations. Hydrogen gas enters at the borrowing station where the electrons orbiting the hydrogen atoms are borrowed and put to work, traveling through a wire as electricity. The denuded hydrogen atom, or ion, heads for the lending station where oxygen has been introduced. Hydrogen and oxygen combine readily.

At the lending station, electrons that have already done their electrical work for man are fed back in to complete the chemical reaction — the joining of hydrogen and oxygen to produce water.

Filtered Water

In later Gemini flights, the water produced by the fuel cells will be filtered for drinking purposes.

But fuel cell makers hope to use other, richer fuels in future packages. They would like to reap electrons from electron-rich hydro-carbons like propane and methane. At the same time they would use air as the source of oxygen.

The problem is holding down the temperatures of the reaction or slowing the reaction down to a reasonable rate. Besides producing water as a byproduct,

Wisconsin's Health

Syphilis Incidence in State, Nation Continues Increase

BY E. H. JORRIS, M.D.
State Health Officer

There's a question mark in the making today that workers in the field of public health hope can be remedied.

When one looks at the graph being drawn by the U.S. Public Health Service on the reported incidence of infectious syphilis in the United States the line is taking on the appearance of a horizontal question mark. Starting at a high point in 1950 the graph line descended gradually until the mid-1950's, when it wavered at a low point for a few years. By 1958, however, there began an accelerating increase in the number of infectious syphilis cases reported and the graph line curved upward so that by 1961 the chart resembled an incomplete letter U. Since 1961 the increase in cases has continued but at a diminished rate and the graph line begins to level off and look like the base of a question mark.

Perhaps the most telling statement in the graphical report is although infectious syphilis seems to be leveling off. . .the indicated base line is now at the highest reported incidence since 1950.

Lower in State

Compared to national averages, Wisconsin has a lower incidence of syphilis than most of the states. But that comparison cannot draw the shade on the fact that there is an increase. Any increase is intolerable.

Modern drug therapy has proved its effectiveness in the treatment and cure of syphilis. But these drugs do no good to infections that are not brought to diagnosis and treatment.

For syphilis and other venereal diseases will be eliminated only when those who have been exposed see their physicians for examination and treatment; and when physicians overcome their reluctance to report all of the cases they treat so that follow-up may be made to discover and treat sources of infection. The State Board of Health has several specially trained investigators assigned to its district offices who are available to physicians to see that contacts and probable sources of infection are brought in for medical examination and treatment. Information obtained is always kept confidential.

The eradication of syphilis is possible. Medically we have the means to cure. We can do the job by finding the early cases of infection, by tracing them to their source and treating cases thus found, and by keeping the entire problem of venereal disease out in the open, where it belongs, and by going after the underlying social causes of these ills.

Working Priest Project Resumed

ROME (AP) — The controversial "worker-priest" movement in France is resuming on a limited basis and with a slight name change.

The new term, "working priest," is intended to emphasize that the participants are doing manual labor in pursuit of their priestly mission, said a spokesman for the Roman Catholic bishops of France.

He said the program would be limited to about 50 priests at the start.

The movement was condemned by the Vatican in 1954 because it appeared to be taking on a coloring sympathetic to communism.

Last Bachelor of 'Princess Margaret Set' Married

BY EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Billy Wallace, 37, onetime boyfriend of Princess Margaret — was married Friday to Elizabeth Hoyer Millar.

The dark-haired and dark-eyed bride, 32, is the daughter of Lord and Lady Inchyra.

Wallace's mother is Mrs. Herbert Agar, wife of American historian Herbert Agar, a Pulitzer Prize-winner and former editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal. His father, her first husband, was the late Capt. Euan Wallace, a former minister of transport.

Billy's marriage, which took place in St. Peter's parish church near the Agars' country home, Beechwood, removed the last bachelor from what was once known as the Princess Margaret set.

U. S. Honeymoon

The church is in Lavington, about 50 miles south of London.

The newlyweds said they planned to sail for a honeymoon in the United States.

Until Princess Margaret wed Antony Armstrong-Jones in 1960, Billy Wallace was her constant escort. She and Wallace had known one another since childhood.

London gossip columnists often predicted that the younger sister of Queen Elizabeth II would one day marry Billy Wallace.

Some of their closest friends, however, disagreed.

"They adore one another, but the trouble is — they've known one another too long. They're too good friends to marry," one said.

During the secret courtship of Armstrong-Jones and the princess, they often met at Billy Wallace's London house, which was less than half a mile from the princess' home, Clarence House.

Billy was the acknowledged leader of the Princess Margaret set — a group of gay, generally rich, often titled, unmarried socialities.

His mother is the daughter of the late Sir Edwin Lutyens, the architect. She lost her first husband and four sons in World War II. Billy is the only son left.

Agar now is a director of a London publishing firm, Rupert Hart-Davis, and a director of a commercial television network.

The bride's father, as Frederick Hoyer Millar, has been one of Britain's most distinguished diplomats with posts in Brussels, Washington, Paris and Bonn. Lady Inchyra is the daughter of the late Dutch diplomat, Jonkheer Reneke de Marees Van Swinderen.

'Albert' to Perform At St. Nicholas Tea

Albert of the Channel 11 television show 'Here's Albert' will entertain children at the Chalice Circle of The King's Daughters St. Nicholas Tea and Children's Style Show this year. Plans for the Dec. 4 event were discussed when the circle met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Otto Bytof, 1626 N. Nicholas St. Another innovation of the third annual benefit program will be an essay contest for the children, in which they tell "What Christmas Means to Me". The afternoon program will be at Butte des Morts Golf Club.

Members heard reports by Mrs. Clyde Chumbly on the convention of the Wisconsin Branch Oct. 14 at Waldo and on the King's Daughters Council meeting.

Mrs. Richard Paulsen and Mrs. Richard Balliet were cohostesses. Mrs. James Veum, 1917 N. Eugene St., will be November hostess.

Television Performer 'Albert' will entertain at the Dec. 4 St. Nicholas Tea and Children's Style Show at Butte des Morts Golf Club. The sponsoring Chalice Circle of The King's Daughters is presently planning the third annual benefit event.

'Weird' Theme For Party at Sacred Heart

The Sacred Heart Home School Association is planning a 'Weird Wing Ding' Friday evening in the school hall. The event, open to the public, will feature decorations in keeping with the Halloween theme.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Schimke are general chairmen of the party. Dancing will be from 9 to 1 a.m., with lunch served at midnight.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Van Dyke are ticket chairmen. Tickets may also be purchased at the door.

Marriage Promises Repeated

WINNECONNE—Miss Kathleen Flanigan became the bride of Daniel A. Noffke in a 10 a.m. ceremony Saturday at St. Thomas Catholic Church, Poygan. The Rev. John E. Quigley officiated at the double ring rite and celebrated the nuptial mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Flanigan, route 1, Winneconne. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Noffke, 637 State St., Menasha.

Miss Mary Flanigan, Oshkosh, cousin of the bride, attended as maid of honor. Miss Kay Noffke, Mrs. Dale Pettit and Miss Mary Ann Gerrits were bridesmaids.

Duties of the best man were performed by the bridegroom's brother, Wayne Noffke, Menasha. Ronald Noffke, James Flanigan and Dale Pettit were groomsmen. Guests were seated by Donald Flanigan and Robert Freund.

After a honeymoon trip to Canada and Niagara Falls, the couple will live at 1528 Manitowoc Road, Menasha.

Do-It-Yourself Paint Jobs Easier With Right Tools

With children off to school and the holidays coming up, many householders plan to redecorate their homes.

The do-it-yourselfer, whose ranks are constantly growing, can get guidance from reputable paint dealers, including advice on color schemes as well as the type of coating to use.

The customer services division of a paint manufacturer, also urges that directions on the can be followed meticulously for craftsman-like results.

In addition, the company offers some practical tips that will remove much of the mystery from the painting process.

Painting Over Paper

For example, it is possible to paint over old wallpaper if the paper still fits tight to the wall. If printed with aniline dyes, it will not take oil paint. If printed with water soluble dyes or metallic patterns, it will not take water-thinned latex paints.

The way to find out is to test the paint on a small hidden area of the wallpaper first, permitting it to dry thoroughly.

If the wallpaper dyes "bleed" or stain through the paint, then a stain sealer must be used before applying paint.

The seam where two edges overlap can be smoothed down with a fine sandpaper, and all dust should then be removed with a damp cloth.

Remove Old Paper

Paper that is loose or torn should be removed by soaking with warm water and scraping carefully with a wide putty knife, taking pains not to gouge the plaster. Wash off all remaining glue, rinse thoroughly with clear water, let the surface dry completely, and apply a primer coat to bind the finish coat of paint to the plaster.

Painting experts also offer two important hints for using paint rollers — which make home decorating easier than ever.

Roller Types

First, start painting the upper part of the wall and apply the paint with up-and-down strokes of the roller. Proceed from an unpainted area and work toward a previously painted area. On horizontal surfaces, start the roller in front of you and work away from your body toward a painted area.

Second, be sure you have the right type of roller for the kind of paint being used. Lamb's wool rollers are intended for oil or alkyd based paints. Rollers made of synthetic fibers are meant for water based latex coatings.

Modern paints come ready-mixed in an unprecedented range of color tones, but all paints must be stirred completely.

Pour some of the liquid from the top into a smaller clean can before stirring. Stir until the paint attains a smooth consistency. Pour back a little liquid at a time, blending it in thoroughly.

Stop painting periodically and stir the remaining paint. This will prevent paint at the bottom from becoming too heavy, which leads to flaking and chalking.

Declarer led a low trump from dummy, and East imaginatively played low

The idea was to let South take a losing finesse if his trump suit happened to be headed by Q-10 instead of Q-J It would be a reasonable idea if nothing better were available, but it suffered from one fatal defect: it didn't work

South won with the queen of hearts and returned the jack of hearts East won with the king of hearts and returned a club, but it was too late. South got to his hand with the jack of clubs and led the ten of hearts to clear the trumps. Declarer then had the rest of the tricks with dummy's clubs and his own top cards.

Should Win Trump

East should take the first round of trumps with the king and return a club South wins and returns a high trump to force out the ace, and East thereupon returns a second club This kills the dummy.

If declarer tries to cash a third club, East ruffs. South must eventually lose two diamond tricks.

This plan will work whenever South has only two clubs. Since the ace of spades has been knocked out and since East has the control of diamonds he knows that there are no side entries to dummy's clubs All East has to do is kill the entries in the club suit itself.

Mrs. Johnson Recalls Liking Mother-in-Law

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson says she liked and enjoyed her mother-in-law "and at times, you know, that is more satisfying than loving."

And her mother-in-law, the late Rebekah Johnson, wanted the young Mrs. Johnson to share "the very special place in my heart" reserved for her eldest son and to "let me mother you as I do my precious boy."

The First Lady's memories of her mother-in-law, and the elder Mrs. Johnson's gracious words — in a honeymoon letter to a bride and groom in Mexico — appear in the current issue of McCall's magazine.

The magazine also published excerpts from "A Family Album" written by the President's mother and illustrated with family photographs.

The elder Mrs. Johnson, who died in 1958, presented the album to Johnson, then Senate majority leader, as a Christmas gift in 1954. It is soon to be published by the McGraw-Hill Book Co.

Not Named

The President's mother writes in the album of demanding three months after the boy's birth that her husband pick a name for the child "or I'm not getting up to cook breakfast."

She tells how she approved naming the boy after Sam Johnson's friend, W. C. Linden, but insisted that the spelling be changed because "Lyndon" was more "euphonious."

She relates that her son didn't quite fulfill the prophecy of his grandfather Johnson, written when the President was a small boy: "I have a mighty fine grandson. I expect him to be U. S. senator before he is 40." Johnson had just turned 40 when he was elected to the Senate.

In the letter received by the honeymooners in Mexico in 1934, the elder Mrs Johnson wished "my boy and his bride the highest and truest happiness together."

To "My Dear Bird" she wrote: "I earnestly hope that you will love me as I do you. It would make me very happy to have you for my very own, to have you turn to me with love and confidence.

Her Hope

"I hope, and hope you know is composed of desire and expectation, that Lyndon will prove to be as tender, as true, as loyal, as loving and as faithful a husband as he has been a son."

To her son she wrote rejoicing "In your happiness, the happiness you so richly deserve, the fruition of the hopes of early manhood, the foundation of a completely rounded life

"I have always desired the best in life for you," she wrote. "Now, that you have the love and companionship of the one and only girl, I am sure you will go far."

The First Lady, in a recent interview published in the same issue, remembers that "the first time I met Lyndon's mother, I felt a sympathetic urge to lift the tension between us"

Johnson had taken Claudia Taylor, better known then as "Bird" and later as "Lady Bird," to visit his mother only one day after he met her.

"I remember it so well," Mrs. Johnson recalls, "because I could see the uncertainity in his mother's face and almost hear the unspoken questions. 'What is he bringing into my life? Is my son seriously interested in this young woman?' "

The First Lady was married less than three months later.

Bleach Job On Cottage Too Difficult

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: Our 10-year-old cottage has log siding. Recently I put on an addition. But during the years, the original log siding has darkened, which I did not notice until the addition was completed. Now there are two different colors, which I don't like. Is it possible to bleach the old siding back to its former shade and thus match the color of the addition?

A: It's possible, of course. But personally, I'd carefully avoid a job as tedious and difficult as trying to bleach an entire cottage, to say nothing of doing it without blotchy areas Instead, I'd heartily recommend your staining the new lighter section a little darker, to match the original siding. A far simpler job!

Q: We have a 1962 sedan with nylon seat covers which have been badly stained I've tried rug shampoos, soap and hot water, and cleaning fluids. All to no avail. Can you suggest something?

A: Hit-or-miss attempts, especially with a synthetic fabric such as nylon, is risky business — particularly if the cleaner contains a bleaching agent You may get the stain out, but at the expense of taking out the color or even weakening the material I suggest that if you know what caused the stain your letter didn't say) drive over to a good dry cleaning place, and either let them recommend a safe cleaner to use or even let them do the job for you.

Your Problems

Girl Plagued by Resemblance To Notorious Exotic Dancer

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 22, a secretary with a problem that is driving me nuts. There's a girl in town who bears a striking resemblance to me. She's a model—the kind who is on call any hour of the day or night. She will pose in various states of dress or undress if the price is right. And finally, she entertains at stag parties as a so-called exotic dancer.

Whenever anyone says, "You look awfully familiar," I get the shakes. I imagine men are nudging each other in elevators and whispering behind my back. This terrible thing is giving me a complex.

When someone says "Haven't I seen you before?" shall I tell them about my double and explain that I am a respectable secretary with no sidelines? Help! Help! — Carbon Crisis

Dear Crisis: Concentrate on letting people know who you are rather than who you aren't. In spite of the striking physical resemblance your manner of speech, dress and general behavior should easily distinguish you from Miss Double Exposure.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our neighbor died yesterday. We were not close friends but she was a pleasant woman and we were sorry.

My husband and I went over to pay our respects and this is what happened. The woman's son pulled my husband off to the side and asked if we planned to send flowers. My husband replied "Yes." The son said, "We'd rather have the money instead. Mother's illness cost a lot and the funeral will be expensive, too. Do you mind giving me a check to help us out?"

My husband was dumbfounded but he took $10 out of his billfold and handed it over.

When we got home he told me about it and I blew my top. My husband asked me to write and get your opinion. He doesn't see anything so terribly wrong with it. Do you? — A. Stonished

Dear A.: I see plenty wrong with it. Friends should not be asked to pitch in and help defray hospital bills and funeral expenses. Your neighbor's son is a clod and I'm sorry your husband fell for his pitch.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Jack and I have been married 14 years. We have six wonderful children.

Jack's parents are people of means. They own a great deal of valuable real estate. The home we live in belongs to them and we live here rent free. His parents even insist on paying the taxes. Jack's three brothers and their families also live in homes owned by their parents.

Jack is a fine, intelligent man and I have great respect for his judgment. His parents feel they can run our lives, dictate what he must do in his work and they also try to take over the disciplining of our children.

Dozens of times I've wanted to tell my in-laws where to head in but I've kept quiet for my husband's sake. I would give anything if we could live our own lives. But how? — YG. T.

Dear YG.T.: When you decide you want to lead your own lives so badly that you are willing to start paying rent, you will take the first step toward independence. Your in-laws feel justified in running your lives since they are keeping the roof over your heads. If it's my opinion you want, here it is: You'd be happier in a broom closet over a bowling alley. So move already.

TIPPING FOR EFFECT

Are you plotting a color change in the near future? A tipping job now, with the contemplated color touching only random strands, allows you to blend in the new shade for effect. This limited preview of a new color often prevents what might have turned out to be a later fiasco, with all your locks converted to a hue not entirely to your liking. We urge you to entrust the tipping chore, however, to a professional.

Out Where Pumpkins Grow

Mikhail Saunders, son of Mrs. Ersila Saunders, decided to keep a pumpkin he could manage. The youngsters chose their own and will carve and decorate them this week at the Appleton Cooperative Nursery.

Pumpkins are for funny faces . . . and for horrible faces that grin from windows on Halloween when little boys and girls are abroad with trick or treat bags. Pumpkins are for Thanksgiving pies. They're for carving, for smelling and for tasting.

They're also for gathering, and youngsters at the Appleton Cooperative Nursery left their classrooms at the First Methodist Church Friday afternoon for a first hand experience at choosing their own—ripe from the vine. The children, with teacher Mrs. Everett Lee and parents directing the operation, went to the Ernest Paltzer farm at 4027 N. Meade St.

They were dressed for the jaunt in boots and rubbers, for Thursday's rain had made mire of fields. With shouts of glee and much pulling of feet from oozing earth, the children chose the pumpkins that would make their Halloweens the bright experience they should be.

Several snoozed on the way home. One faces winter in need of new boots. His are lodged securely out where the pumpkins grow.

It Doesn't Look So Big but it weighs more than Lisa LaRocque, left, can manage with ease. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jules LaRocque chose a pumpkin worthy of a master carving job for her Halloween. Above the energy of childhood worn temporarily thin, Janet Winslow and David Callaway were content to rest from their labors before the ride home. Janet is the daughter of the R. W. Winslows and David is the son of the E. R. Callaways. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Mothers Urged to Strengthen Moral, Spiritual Foundations

OSHKOSH — "Modesty deters qualified women from being nominated for Mother of the Year in Wisconsin. . .there are so many wonderful mothers here," said Mrs. Dorothy Lewis, charming and busy president of the American Mothers Committee, who met with the Wisconsin Mothers Committee here Wednesday to discuss plans and programs of the organization.

Mrs. Lewis began a nationwide trip Oct. 10 and will not return to New York until after Christmas. "With my travels last year and this year I will have visited every state except Alaska and Hawaii," she noted happily.

Many Aims

There are many objectives of the national organization, which is observing its 30th anniversary this year. "Our major one is to strengthen the moral and spiritual foundations of the home," the national chairman explained. "We have drafted a mothers' manifesto and pledge which we hope will be signed by one million mothers, including hundreds and hundreds from Wisconsin," Mrs. Lewis stated. "Modesty deters ers' manifesto and pledge which we hope will be signed by one million mothers, including hundreds and hundreds from Wisconsin," Mrs. Lewis stated. "This is a crusade against crime, in connection with President Johnson's Crime Commission. We feel it is through mothers that we get to the root of the problem."

The "public declaration of intentions" which mothers will be able to obtain from Mrs. Bess Spees, Oshkosh, head of the state committee, or from national headquarters, is concerned with social problems of America and its youth. There are 10 points to the pledge, including items on obeying laws, drinking, pornographic literature and encouraging church attendance. Mrs. Lewis particularly likes the eighth point, in which a mother pledges "to know where my children are and with whom."

One of the primary purposes of the inter-faith and inter-racial group is to pick a mother of the year from the elected 50 state mothers. Clubs, church groups and chambers of commerce are among those who can help nominate women for the state honor. "It will soon be time for nominations for Wisconsin Mother of the Year," Mrs. Spees interjected. Notification will be sent to all media. Persons will be able to contact Mrs. Spees for blanks.

One of Mrs. Lewis's favorite projects is the young mothers council service supplied by American Mothers Committee. The program for mothers of preschool age children serves as "group therapy", with mothers pooling ideas on personal problems encountered in raising their children. Ten or 15 mothers will meet once a month to discuss common troubles. "I feel this council service should be started in Wisconsin," Mrs. Lewis declared.

Need Most

"Working mothers need the help of young mothers councils more than anyone." Mothers who are interested in this service, for which informative kits are available, may write New York headquarters or Mrs. Spees. Included in the kit are discussions of the adopted, retarded or gifted child, religion in the home, destructiveness in the home and similar problem areas.

The national chairman also discussed the organization's inter-faith prayer groups and the work of her committee with mothers' groups throughout the world.

Dual Crisis Cited As UN's Problem

Legal Foundation, Financial Responsibility Cause Conflicts

A dual crisis over financial responsibility and constitutional foundations of the United Nations was seen as the chief problem facing the world body on its 20th anniversary by William A Richardson, editor-in-chief of the UN monthly Chronicle, in an address Sunday at Lawrence University.

Richardson spoke to an audience of about 75 persons at Memorial Union on the annual United Nations Day observance.

In a review of United Nations activities during the past two decades, Richardson pinpointed the Korean conflict as "sowing the seeds and germs of the constitutional crisis which came to a head in the 19th session of the General Assembly."

Concerned With Disputes

Where the organization was founded to relieve the spectors of fear, ignorance and disease growing out of World War II, it has had to concern itself increasingly with international disputes beginning with the Palestine problem, and continuing through such crises as those in West New Guinea, Cuba, Cyprus and Kashmir, he said.

In each case, the organization's roles as mediator, negotiator and supervisor were complicated by rifts within the Security Council and by the need to support the emergency forces required to keep the peace.

As leaders of the countries involved called upon the United Nations to preserve their integrity, Richardson said, the organization's normal budgetary resources were more severely taxed. Finally, in the Suez and Congo situations, the United Nations found itself plunged heavily into debt.

The impact was felt keenly in the 19th session of the General Assembly where the increasing number of participating nations called for a greater role in the solution of the organization's problems.

Two Key Moves

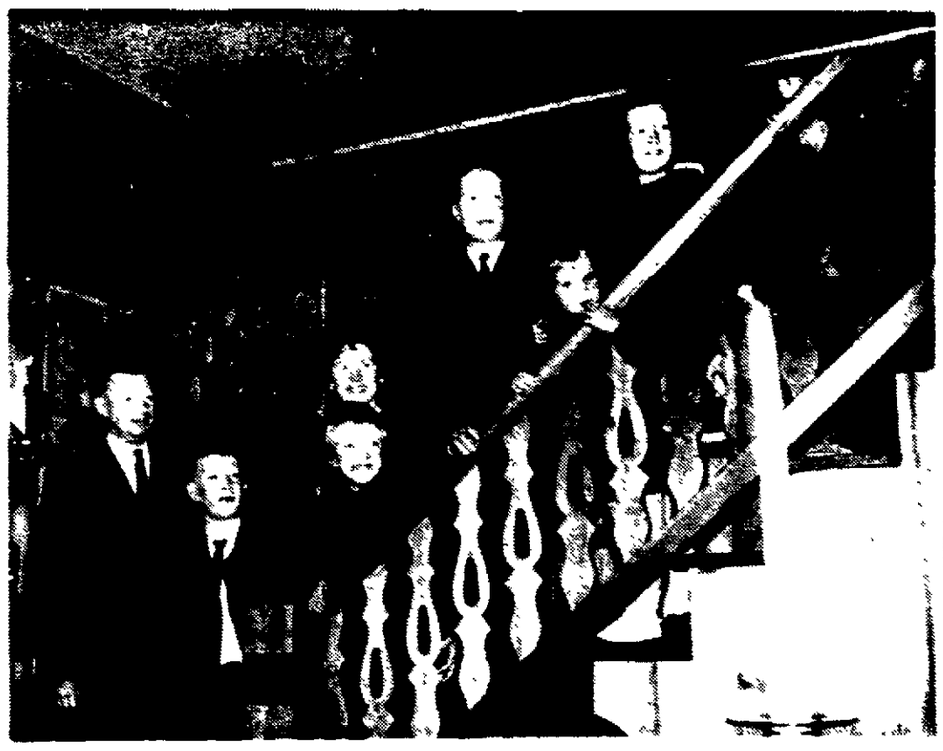
Richardson saw two moves as keys to the future directions of the body.

First was the formulation of the "Committee of Thirty-Three" which was to look into the widely divergent views of the nations for a solution to the question of constitutional authority.

Next was the action of the nations involved in the West New Guinea and Cyprus problems in undertaking financial support of their own cause, thus saving the United Nations' resources.

Richardson suggested that despite the disatisfaction of member nations with the veto plan within the Security Council and the corresponding strength of the growing General Assembly, there is hope for the United Nations in such areas as world disarmament and in helping new countries to provide for the social-economic needs of their people.

He said, "More than ever it is up to the peoples of the world as to what kind of an organization they want to have running their international affairs."



Dr. and Mrs. B. J. Haza, Appleton, were among the more than 200 guests who attended an open house Sunday at Rawhide, Inc. With them are their children. They are shown on the stairway leading to the large dining room on the first floor of the 23-room home. Rawhide is a 750-acre estate on the Wolf River between Fremont and New London which will become a foster home for boys the year around and a boys summer camp.

Council to Review $12 Million Budget for City, School Needs

Estimate Calls for $46.36 Rate Before State, County Tax Costs

A proposed $12,065,908 budget for 1966 goes to the Appleton Council tonight.

However, aldermen will not immediately act on the budget which will require a $7,157,650 tax levy and a $46.36 tax rate for city and school purposes.

To be added to the levy, which will increase the rate, are the city's share of state and Outagamie County operating expenses for the coming year.

The budget to be presented aldermen for the first time tonight for review was prepared by the finance committee, the latter slicing $375,000 from original requests of all departments and boards which totaled $12,403,391.

'True Budget'

"We think it is a true budget and hope the city council will go along with its present form," commented Ald. Alvin E. Tews (5th), finance committee chairman.

At its Nov. 3 meeting, the council will authorize publication of the budget.

The public hearing will be held at city hall the night of Nov. 17 when the council sets the tax rate.

Close to 70 per cent of the levy (money to be raised through property taxes) will be for board of education operations, new school construction and debt service on existing school buildings.

School Costs

The board of education's levy, climbing steadily in recent years, is $4,951,344, or an increase of $531,748 over this year.

Operating general government, including all municipal departments except the vocational school, public library and park board, will require a $1,670,943 levy—up $175,030.

Finance Director Henry Schreve has prepared a comparative analysis of the property tax levy for the 1965 and 1966 budget years, along with the amount of the tax rate each equals.

Broken down, the proposed $46.36 per $1,000 assessed valuation rate (state and county to be added) is as follows:

Board of Education, $32.07.

General city government, $10.82

Park board, $1.58.

Public library, $1.07.

Vocational school, 82 cents.

100 Persons Comb Area Where Body of Student Was Found

OSHKOSH—City police, auxiliary police and Menominee Park employes today are continuing to comb the surounding area where the body of an 18-year old Wisconsin State University - Oshkosh student was found Oct. 16.

Police Chief Harry A. Guenther said a search by about 100 auxiliary police, police and boy scouts Saturday turned up a variety of items, none of which would be directly associated with the murder.

All the items found, he said, were dried and are being forwarded to the State Crime Laboratory for investigation. The fire department continued dragging the area where the body was found in an attempt to turn up some particle of clothing.

Saturday the breakwater near which the body was found was combed without turning up a clue. Areas which will be covered again are the breakwater, boat launching site, one quarter to the southwest of where the body was found and other portions of the park, the police said.

Meanwhile, Guenther said his department will continue to interview WSU-O students in an attempt to trace the whereabous of Stephen Kappell, Kaukauna, on and after Sept. 28 when he was first missed at his dormitory.

A corner's report, received Friday, listed the death of Kappell as drowning. Previously, the cause of death had not been determined because of a beating which the youth had apparently received around the head and chest. But muck and water in the victim's lungs found by Dr. Helen Young of the Milwaukee Medical Examiners Office, determined the cause of death as drowning.

Wires Downed, Four Injured In Car Crash

Area Near Freedom Without Electricity Following Accident

Four young persons were hospitalized and part of the Freedom area was without electricity Sunday as a result of a one car accident about 8 p.m. on County Trunk E, three miles north of Freedom in the Town of Oneida. The car burst into flames after the accident.

Taken to Kaukauna Community Hospital by the Kaukauna ambulance were Harvey M. Skenandore, 20, driver of the car, with a cut on the chin and a broken right leg; Shirley Brice, 16, with bumps and bruises; Clarence Doxtator, 16, with a cut on the left leg and a possible broken right ankle; and Patricia Danforth, 18, with a cut on the right arm and cuts about the head.

All except Miss Danforth live on route 2, West DePere. She is from route 3, Seymour.

Going North

The Skenandore car was traveling north on County Trunk E when it left the road and traveled some distance before rolling over, coming to rest on the roof, Outagamie County Traffic police said.

Approximately 300 feet of fence were torn down and electric service was interrupted after the car snapped a utility pole guideline, shorting the wires.

The Freedom Volunteer Fire Department was called to extinguish the fire in the overturned car. Officers listed the vehicle as demolished.

Calumet Could Get $29,000 in Poverty Funds

Cost-Sharing Program Outlined At Fond du Lac

CHILTON—A total of $29,000 would be available to Calumet County under the Economic Opportunity Program if the Calumet County Board elects to participate in this cost-sharing program.

Under the plan, federal participation amounts to 90 per cent of the costs and the county or sponsoring organization is expected to accept 10 per cent of the costs.

Supvs. G. J. Hipke, and Oscar Kossman, and County Clerk Roland E. Miller attended a meeting at Fond du Lac last week concerning the program.

Various Aids

Karl Olein, federal representative, explained the program and the method of participation. Under the plan many categories of aids are available to counties.

According to Olein, Winnebago, Fond du Lac and Calumet Counties are being considered as a multi-unit.

Investments Earn Appleton $180,000

Treasurer Makes Money for City For 8 Years Without Trying Hard

Appleton City Treasurer Ray Feuerstein reports earnings of $180,000 on invested city funds.

In a report to the common council, Feuerstein explained his formula for making money for the city without really trying too hard.

He puts idle funds to work in government securities or local banks so that it builds up interest income.

"Needless to say," Feuerstein relates, "the more one has to invest the more interest one can expect to earn."

This has been the case since Feuerstein assumed office in April of 1957.

Mostly Government Securities

In his first years as the city's investment authority, Feuerstein's portfolio contained mostly government securities, such as bonds, certificates, notes and U.S. treasury bills.

"Later some of the money was invested in the local banks, until at present most of it is invested in time deposits, savings certificates and certificates of deposit locally," Feuerstein said.

The change to investing most of the city's idle funds came about after the banks offered interest rates as high or higher than those paid by the U.S. government, Feuerstein said.

"This, in effect, accomplishes a twofold purpose — that of earning more interest and keeping the money in our local community. All four banks in the city participate in the program," Feuerstein explained.

Invest Bond Proceeds

A gimmick which has paid handsome dividends for the city has been the investing of bond issue proceeds earmarked for building schools or carrying out other major municipal projects.

Because the money is not all paid out at once after the bond issue has been floated money is invested and earns interest. It is dispersed as the buildings or projects progress.

For example, Feuerstein invested a goodly amount of the $1.8 million Einstein Junior High School bond money. By the time the school project was completed, the city had earned $50,000 interest.

Feuerstein says as result of its investment program, the City of Appleton has earned more than a half million dollars in interest over the past five-year period.

Sheboygan C of C Good Will Tour To be Delayed

KAUKAUNA — The good will tour of city industries and business places, scheduled Wednesday by the Sheboygan Chamber of Commerce, has been postponed until early in 1966 due to a conflict in scheduling, according to Miss Mary Margaret DeClercq, executive secretary of the Kaukauna Chamber of Commerce.

Appleton, Teamsters Discuss '66 Contract

Wages Expected as Major Issue; Clause On Picketing Results From Recent Dispute

City of Appleton and Teamsters Local 563 negotiators met for several hours Saturday reviewing the union's 1966 contract demands.

The union, representing several public works department employes, seeks increased wages, fringe benefits and some contract language unique to this area.

While wages are expected to be a major issue, the council's personnel committee and the five-man union bargaining team discussed at length a picketing clause proposed for the 1966 agreement.

The union has requested that union employes not be disciplined or discharged for refusing to cross a picket line or work at the scene of a labor dispute.

Strike Incident

Robert Schlieve, secretary-treasurer for Local 563, admitted the picket clause came into being as result of the recent ready-mix concrete strike and an incident in which two city truck drivers were ordered by a department head to pass a picket line and obtain materials.

It was Schlieve's contention the city could have obtained materials from a firm which was not strikebound.

However, Max Hensel, personnel committee chairman, said a look at the other side of the coin would reflect added expense for the city, delay and inconvenience in carrying out municipal projects.

Hensel also said if the men refused to cross lines or handle struck materials, there would be no work for them and the city would be caught in an unfortunate position of having

Aim: New World Government

Man Offers Land Gift to 30 Nations

BY RAY PY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A Douglas County bachelor, who gave up farming several years ago to concentrate on "world problems," claims this week he has given away 150 acres of his land to the 30 smallest countries in the world for use as a world platform.

Emil Matalik, 36, of Lake Nebagamon, (Douglas County) said the land is to be used to form a United Natures Organization, a new world government which is to replace the United Nations.

Copies of 30 deeds were sent over the weekend to the heads of the 30 nations which are to receive the properties. Matalik said that if the countries do not accept the land, the property is to be returned to him. He said the deeds, if used, are in the name of the head of state for the duration of his life.

Deed Restrictions

If the acreage is used, Matalik said, the country must follow definite deed restrictions which include a world birth control program, a world debate platform, world land reform, free love, and correction of the worlds wrongs."

Matalik said the new world government would be headed by a duly-elected president. He said he is willing to go to foreign countries to discuss his program if the country will pay his expenses.

Matalik has not filed the 30 deeds with the Douglas County register of deeds, but has had deeds signed on Oct. 1, 1965 before Lillian J. Allen, a notary public. Several years ago, Matalik made news when he doned his property to the United Nations, but the United Nations did not accept the offer.

Has Sufficient Funds

The former farmer, who said he is an Air Force veteran of nine years, said he has "sufficient funds" to carry out his give-away program without taking a daily job or working his farm. He would not elaborate on where the funds came from or how much he has spent in his efforts to publicize his venture "come from his own pocket."

He purchased the property from Lake Nebagamon farmers after getting out of military service and attending Eastern New Mexico College briefly in 1957.

"I figured farming was the best hing for me," Matalik said. He said he worked at odd jobs briefly before buying farm property. Later, he said, he became involved in international politics and decided to concentrate 100 per cent on the world government reorganization.

"I also have written some songs," Matalik said, "but I don't intend to have any published or sold." He said the melodies come into his head and "I get someone else to write them down."

Matalik, who was in Canada over the weekend to publicize his program, said he should be getting reaction from the world's leaders "sometime this week." He said he expected favorable acceptance of the plan.

The land which the 30 countries will accept or reject is mostly open land used at one time for grazing. He said the acreage also included some woodlots, but no buildings.

New World Flag

A new, temprary world government flag or emblem will fly from Matalik's farmhouse soon, he said.

Earlier this year, Matalik made a long distance telephone appeal to the Kremlin in Moscow to end the Viet Nam crisis. Observers said Matalik was successful in reaching a switchboard in the Russian capital, but did not contact any high ranking government official. Observers said Matalik paid for the telephone call, in advance, with cash.

Business Pace Quickening After Decline

Less Than Average Gains Expected in Last Months of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Economy watchers are reporting signs today that the business pace is quickening again after the mild slowdown in recent weeks.

Few expect the gains to be as marked in the final months of 1965 as in previous quarters of the year. But even fewer look for any pronounced or prolonged slowdown.

The stock market has brushed off the drop in industrial output as of little importance. Traders have their eyes instead on what they think will happen in 1966 And many think that industry will be booming They expect prices to rise, and therefore profits also.

Steel, autos and home building have been blamed for the slackening in total activity in September. But this month auto production is back in full swing. Housing starts have picked up slightly, if hardly convincingly. Only steel continues to mark time while customers work off their large inventories, built up in the summer when a strike seemed possible.

But even the decline in steel production and the sharp drop in new orders for the metal couldn't keep the rest of the durable goods makers from registering a recovery in volume of new orders. They aren't back to the record set in July but they're improving again And just how much longer steel customers will go slow on ordering more metal is debatable.

In the transportation equipment field orders have picked up markedly. Much is traceable to ordering of commercial airliners and to big government contracts for both aircraft and missiles.

The backlog of unfilled orders for durable goods has jumped by $750 million in the last month to a total of $58.9 billion, assuring busy weeks ahead for many producers.

Predict Rise in GNP

Economy watchers are now predicting that the Gross National Product should rise by $8 billion to $9 billion in the final three months of the year. This would bring the nation's total output of goods and services to an annual rate of $685 billion by year's end. In the third quarter the gain was $11 billion.

Bankers are saying that another $11 billion jump might be a dubious blessing. Economists at the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., New York, point out that "recent statistics, particularly those relating to the labor market, contain strong hints that the economy is operating rather close to the limits consistent with over-all price stability."

Trigger Inflation

What they mean is that too big a jump in the rate of increase of the GNP might trigger an inflationary rise in the cost of living.

The labor figures the bankers cite are the drop in the jobless rate to 4.4 per cent of the total labor force, and the shortages here and there of skilled workmen. This could help wage scales to rise and put more pressure under the drive to raise prices.

But a moderate rise in business activity, such as seems likely today, could be taken in stride by an economy that has been remarkably well balanced during its 56 months of almost continuous upturn.

Menasha Area Getting New Look

MENASHA — If you haven't noticed, several of the "crow's" feet on the facades in downtown Menasha have been disappearing as store owners remodel and reface their buildings.

The facelifting doesn't amount to a major urban renewal, but the pace of the refurbishing has been accelerating in recent weeks.

Mayor John Klein believes much of the impetus for the program came from the development of off-street municipal parking on Broad Street. Last week, the city gravelled another 24-space section in back of the Main Street shopping area.

"It allows customers to drive right up to the back door of the store they are going to," explained Public Works Director Robert Poss.

General plans include development of additional off-street parking whenever possible, he said The city this week will grade and gravel a 25-stall lot in back of the Brin Building on Water Street, he added.

AHS East Bond Issue

Council, School Board Prepare for Showdown

The stage is set tonight for a showdown between the Appleton Common Council and Board of Education over the latter's fiscal requirements to build and equip a new senior high school

A $5 million bond issue which the board requested for constructing and equipping the proposed Appleton East High School will be a special item of business at a committee of the whole meeting.

Aldermen will tackle their regular agenda at 7:30 p.m., today and then take up the school financing and other special business later.

The school board wants the council to approve and authorize the signing of contracts for the five prime contractors. General construction, including a pool, will amount to $4.1 million.

Some Items Cut

The board says it has cut some items and plans to defer $250,000 worth of others to be able to equip the school for $90,000, plus federal aids expected to exceed $150,000.

The last time the council and school board got together, aldermen defeated the original request for $5.6 million and then voted to bond for $5 million—providing the school board made deletions rather than deferrals.

Since then the board of education amended the so-called gentlemen's agreement, much to the consternation of some aldermen.

The matter is expected to be resolved tonight In the meantime, contractors have extended their low bids for 30 days.

Congressmen Agree Session Broke Records

GOP, Democratic Members Disagree On Quality of Laws

BY FRANCES MCKUSICK
Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — As the 89th Congress fades into history, both Democratic and Republican House members representing the Fox Cities area acknowledged that the Congress was a record-breaking one in law-making But their agreement on its accomplishments ended there.

Rep. John W. Byrnes (R., Green Bay), charged that the 89th "has been a Congress which has operated under the whiplash of a President who insists upon having his own way."

"Because law after law has been enacted without adequate hearings or debate in haste to pile up a presidential record, the country will pay the price in a vast hodgepodge of legal confusion, faulty administration, and outright corruption during the next several years," he predicted during an interview with this reporter.

Race Disagrees

Rep. John A Race (D., Fond du Lac), on completing the first session of his first term in the House, took a different view and said he was gratified at being a part of the "record-breaking 89th Congress." Race felt that the country as a whole would enjoy the benefits that the Congress had initiated this year long into the future He indicated that the year 1965 would eventually become one of the historical turning points of the country.

Remarking that the first session of the 89th Congress has been called the most productive in history, Rep Melvin R Laird (R., Marshfield), pointed out, however, that most of the major bills had been forced through the Congress "under the gag procedures" and this had prevented their improvement through amendments

He pointedly emphasized that Senate Majority Leader A S M (Mike) Mansfield of Montana had predicted that the concern of the second session of the 89th would be the "perfection, elaboration and refinement of basic legislation enacted in the first session

Cites Democratic Critics

Tartly commenting that if even the Administration's own leaders took such a view of some of the legislation approved this year, Laird concluded it must certainly have fallen far short of being good legislation

More outspoken in his criticism of the passing Congress than any of the others questioned was Rep Vernon R. Thomson (R., Richland Center), a former governor of the state

The first session of this Congress was completely frustrating and demoralizing," Thomson commented tartly. "We saw a complete abdication by the Congress of any semblance of legislative responsibility

"The overwhelming Democratic majorities abandoned any attempt to write their own legislation and instead maintained a "legislation by proxy" policy," he continued "Legislation was passed at the whim of the President and handed to him and even to Lady Bird on a silver platter."

New Street Sign, Number System Asked

Revamping the city's street sign and house numbering system was advocated today by a group of Appleton residents in a petition to the common council

They are seeking legislation which would regulate placement of house numbers on residences within the city.

The changes petitioners advocate, they said, would help alleviate traffic congestion, give the city a consistent marking system, aid law enforcement officials in patroling and moving traffic, and help motorists find their way about the city guaranteed the same employes pay for a 40-hour week.

Regulating the size and color of house numbers was recommended by the group, which also said block numbers should appear on street signs and legible from a distance of at least 50 feet.

Speaking for the committee, Hensel also said the city departments had a responsibility to the public

"What we are proposing doesn't mean the city should cease doing business with a struck firm," Schlieve said. "It merely gives the individual employe the right to exercise his right as to whether or not he wants to walk through the line without having the threat of discharge or discipline hanging over his head."

Guaranteed Work

Hensel said as long as the city was guaranteeing the union employes a 40-hour work week, then the union should in turn guarantee the city the supplies so they could work."

Also explored was the union's request for a quarterly cost-of-living pay adjustment based on the U S Labor Department's cost of living index This would be in addition to a requested 18-cent per hour pay hike the Teamsters are seeking for 1966, eight cents of it to be retroactive to Jan 1, 1965

The personnel committee, pointing out that cost of living adjustments are being eliminated from contracts, indicated reluctance to go along with it

Both sides were hopeful of negotiating the city's first signed contract without any excessive delay

Whatever agreement is reached between the union and personnel committee must be approved by the common council before going into effect.

Klansmen Preach Segregation Over Burning Crosses

Hooded Order Pledges to Back Viet Nam, Continue Resurgence

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Crosses blazed in Southern states this weekend as Ku Klux Klan member preached segregation and promised to continue the resurgence of the hooded order.

In Madisonville, Tex., where about 1,300 persons — half of them in Klan robes — met in an open field Saturday night, a Klan leader urged a demonstration in Austin next Saturday to counteract anti-Viet Nam protests.

Royce McPhail of Crockett, Tex., the principal speaker at the rally, where a 25-foot cross was burned, said the state's Klan members would stage the demonstration in support of U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

50-Foot Cross

A Klan rally in Tampa, Fla., Saturday night was marked by the burning of a 50-foot cross as about 250 men in robes and 1,000 other spectators gathered. A speaker identified as the Rev. A. S. Maple of Georgia told the crowd, "God was the first segregationist to walk this earth."

An unidentified woman speaking at the Tampa rally said members who act as informants in any probe into the order "are not true Klansmen."

A 35-foot cross blazed at Marion, S.C., as 2,000 persons turned out. The Klan's grand dragon in the state, Robert Scoggin of Spartanburg, criticized the national administration and racial integration.

At Washington, Ga., the grand dragon of the Georgia Klan, Calvin Craig, spoke at a rally after a Negro civil rights march failed to materialize in Lincolnton, scene of racial tensions 19 miles away.

Craig, who will appear as a witness later this week in a congressional hearing on the activities of the Klan, said he will attempt to stage a rally in Lincolnton next Saturday.

Negroes in Lincolnton said they would try to organize a mass meeting i nthe east Georgia community today but one civil rights leader said Negroes are scared of reprisals from white persons.

Full school integration is a major target o fcivil rights leaders in Washington and Lincolnton.

Malaysia Warned Against Starting Indonesia Trade

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysia warned Singapore Premier Lee Kuan Yew today against resuming barter trade with Indonesia without the Malaysian government's approval.

Prime Minister Abdul Rahman's Cabinet held an emergency meeting after press reports that Singapore proposed to reestablish barter trade with Indonesia using an island off Singapore as a trading post.

Trading between Indonesia and Malaysia — which then included Singapore — was broken off as part of Indonesian President Sukarno's campaign to crush Malaysia.

The agreement separating Singapore from Malaysia binds both governments to avoid international commitments that might endanger the other. Rahman has hinted he is prepared to use force if necessary to see that the pledge is kept.

Train Hits Two Cars, Both Drivers Charged

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A Central of Georgia Railroad engine delivering freight cars to the yard Sunday struck a car at a crossing while entering the yards, dropped the freight cars, reversed, and struck another car at a crossing a block from the original accident.

One automobile driver received a cut on the hand. The other was unhurt. Both men were charged with reckless driving and failing to stop for the flashing lights at the crossings, police said.

First Public Appearance

Speedboat Occupies LBJ's Recovery Time

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson is circulating in public once more and even doing some speedboating while settling down for an extended recuperation at his ranch home.

Johnson, who flew to the ranch Saturday for a stay of several weeks, made his first public appearance Sunday since his Oct. 8 operation.

With Mrs. Johnson, he attended Communion services at the First Christian Church here and heard Pastor Ray Akin, a lay minister, thank God "for our leader's rapid recovery."

Walked Gingerly

The President walked gingerly however, as he approached the boathouse for his aquatic outing. In church he eased himself up and down because of continuing pain from the incision made for his operation.

As he told reporters at an informal news conference aboard his plane during the flight to Texas: "I hurt good — if you know what I mean."

Johnson, who said, "I feel sometimes like I have a baseball right here in my right side," vowed he would "stay every minute I can" at the ranch during the next couple of months. However, there may be occasional trips back to Washington.

Because of the President's baseball allusion, most newsmen and photographers who watched his speedboating were surprised. They had thought he would confine himself to cabin cruiser jaunts for a few weeks, because speedboats can deal out a stiff jolt in choppy water. The water was choppy under a steady breeze.

While Johnson relaxed, associates talked freely about the President's reaction to the 1965 Congressional session and his anticipation of next year's session.

They said he tells them he will push hard, come January, for enactment of 23 major administration bills sidetracked this year. These range from repeal of Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act — permitting states to outlaw union shops — to home rule for the District of Columbia.

Halfway Point of 89th Congress

Carry-Over Legislation Expected To Start Second Half With Bang

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carry-over legislation probably will touch off some early political fireworks when Congress returns to work next January.

In the 10-month first session of the 89th Congress which shuffled to a weary end early Saturday, the Senate and House rolled out a massive tide of major legislation. But impressive as it was, President Johnson made it clear it left some things undone he wants tended to in 1966.

White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers said in reporting Johnson was pleased at what had been accomplished that "there are a good many things on the agenda we want to get at — 23 in all."

While Moyers didn't go into detail, leaders guessed that the President would be back knocking on the door for action next year on some of the programs they tucked away in the closet before shutting up shop.

Labor Bills

Three of these involved legislation organized labor wanted but didn't get — a bill to repeal authority of states to ban the union shop, a measure to expand coverage and possibly increase the present $1.25 hourly minimum wage and a presidential request for federal standardization of unemployment compensation benefits.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he may move in January to bring up the House-passed union shop ban. Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, in a separate interview, threatened a new filibuster similar to that which blocked Senate action on the proposal in the session just closed.

Congressional leaders say they don't know yet whether Johnson will propose a new tax cut next year. But Mansfield and Dirksen agreed the prospect of any further reduction looks dim now.

Attack Increases

Dirksen said the commitments made in the session just closed total nearly $150 billion. He and House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford plan to attack what they call the inflationary increase in federal spending under a new budget Johnson may not be able to hold below $100 billion.

The Republican leaders made it clear they expect controversy to flare up over the administration of the $6.5 billion Social Security program, the $3.6-billion educational aid measure and some other programs Congress approved this year.

They forecast some infighting over what they said is overlapping authority in the Appalachia aid and economic development programs. Mansfield conceded these projects will need supervision by Congress, adding that part of the second session's job will be to round out "rough corners" in laws the first session put in the books.

In this connection, Johnson has a couple of important matters to take up with the lawmakers when they come back. In its dying hours the first session refused to supply any money for rent subsidies under the housing act or for his teachers corps proposal under the education bill.

FBI to Augment Intelligence in South America

Newspaper Reports Agency Already Informing Johnson

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Herald Tribune said today it had learned that under orders from President Johnson, the business of intelligence collection in Latin America — and perhaps the rest of the world as well — is going to be "augmented" by FBI agents.

Normally, a story from Washington added, the field of foreign intelligence gathering is the jealously guarded domain of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Sources in Washington, the story said, confirm that Johnson has directed the FBI into at least eight key Latin-American cities where it had not operated since the end of World War II.

The Herald Tribune story also said in part:

The FBI would act — and in some cases is already acting — to give the President "an independent new source of intelligence data" on matters relating to U.S. security.

CIA to Continue

The CIA will continue to operate more or less as it has in the past, sources said, and the FBI agents will concentrate almost totally on gathering intelligence.

The FBI, except under the rarest circumstances, will not be authorized to carry out covert operations — invasions, armed infiltration, secret support of opposition to regimes and other such projects — as does the CIA.

Only "two or three men and a small staff" will make up the FBI team in any country, the sources said. The exception to date, however, is in the Dominican Republic, where more than a score of FBI agents were ordered into Santo Domingo by Johnson during the crisis last May.

It is known, despite administration protests to the contrary, that Johnson was sorely dismayed by the work of the CIA during the Dominican crisis.

Tormenting Rectal Itch Stopped In Minutes

Science Finds New Healing Substance That Promptly Stops Itching and Pain of Piles

New York, N. Y. (Special) — One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "itching piles." It is most embarrassing for the victim during the day and especially aggravating at night.

No matter what you've used without results—here's good news. For the first time, science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to promptly stop the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids—without surgery. Medical science has proved this substance produces a remarkably effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations. This improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of months! Among these sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' duration.

The secret is this new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — discovery of a world-famous research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H®. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters.

Texas Students Plan Pro-Viet Nam Activity

COMMERCE, Tex. (AP) — Students at East Texas State University plan to demonstrate in favor of President Johnson's Viet Nam policy and burn North Viet Nam's President Ho Chi-minh in effigy Thursday.

Doug Terry, freshman from Reading, Pa., announced that a group called Americans for America will sponsor the march and burning.

He estimated 1,000 of the 6,800 students enrolled would participate.

Tot Accidentally Strangles in Car

OOSTBURG (AP)— The two-year-old son of a Milwaukee policeman strangled accidentally Sunday when his neck became caught in the partially open window of a car.

The child, Edward Florvance, had been playing alone inside the family auto. Sheboygan County sheriff's deputies said the boy evidently lowered the window on the driver's side and was standing on the arm rest on the door when his feet slipped.

His parents, Policeman and Mrs. Robert F. Florvance, were visiting friends here.

Bob Kennedy to Give Talk in Cape Town, if He Can Enter Country

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy has agreed to address a multiracial student rally in Cape Town next May, but the sponsors don't know whether the South African government will admit the New York Democrat to the country.

Nor is it known if the government will permit the meeting. Officials have threatened to suppress the student organization sponsoring the rally.

Officials in Pretoria, the administrative capital, said they knew nothing of a visit by Kennedy.

Nuns Shed Habits to Go To School

Three Boston Women Learning to Become Physician, Dentists

BOSTON (AP) — Five days weekly three young women in Boston dress in outfits not common to their way of life and go to school to learn professions they once had no thought of following.

The three are Roman Catholic nuns, studying at the Tufts New England Medical Center. One will become a medical doctor, the other two doctors of dental medicine.

By special dispensation which they did not seek, they go to school in skirts and blouses, nylon stockings and low-heeled shoes.

Sister Marie Celeste of the Sisters of St. Joseph is known among patients as Dr. Mary Flanagan when she is engaged in hospital clinical work.

That was her name when she was growing up in St. Paul, Minn., and later in Belmont, Mass., before she took her vows in 1958. She is in her third year of medical school.

Sister Marie Celeste said she believes her work will involve the medical care of the 2,000 Sisters of St. Joseph nuns in the Boston area.

On weekends and other out-of-school days Dr. Flanagan again becomes Sister Marie Celeste in her long black habit of floor length.

Sister Jean Clare, the former Elaine Eason of Buffalo, N.Y., and Sister Stephan Mary, the former Katharine Lawlor of Beverly, Mass., will become dentists after two more years of their four-year course.

Medical Missionaries

Both are members of the Medical Missionaries of Mary, which never has had a dentist among its congregation of some 500.

Both expect to work in missions in Africa.

"Our congregation," one said, "doesn't teach or preach, but help. We feel you can't reach a person's soul easily if his body is afflicted."

It Was a Bad Day for Quarterbacks in the Packer-Cowboy game in Milwaukee Sunday. Here Dallas' Craig Morton (14) is being dumped for an 8-yard loss by Henry Jordon (74). Ralph Neely (73) is unsuccessful in trying to ward Jordan off. The Bays won, 13-3. (Post-Crescent News Service Photo)

Packers Top Dallas In Defensive Battle

Bays Net Only 63 Yards but Stay Unbeaten With 13-3 Win; Willie Davis Stars

BY ART DALEY
Post-Crescent News Service

MILWAUKEE — The Green Bay Packers needed a strong defensive performance in County Stadium Sunday. . .and they got it, plus.

The Cowboys smothered Green Bay's offense and for a spell it appeared that an upset would be in the making. . .until the Packer defense came to the rescue.

The low score, 13 to 3, and the fierce hitting game represent sort of a throwback to grandpaw's day when a single touchdown or a field goal was a day's work.

But this was a 1965 phenomena and the Packer defenders not only shackled the Cowboys, they set up all three Packer scores with an interception and two fumble recoveries, before 48,311 fans.

Remain On Top

In the Western Division standings, the Packers still are sitting on top with a 6-0 record, a full game in front of the Colts (5-1) who came from behind to whip the Rams Sunday.

The Packers stayed unbeaten with two field goals by Don Chandler — 44 yards in the second quarter and 22 in the third — and a 7-yard touchdown by Jim Taylor — his first TD of the season, in the third quarter. Dallas tied the score with a 20-yard field goal by Danny Villanueva in the third.

The Packer counters were set up by an interception of a Craig Morton pass by Tom Brown and recovery of fumbles by Junior Coffey on the Cowboy 22 and Willie Davis on the Cowboy 7.

On the first play after Davis' recovery, Bart Starr sent Taylor around right end for the game's only TD, with Jerry Kramer putting down the big block.

10 Punts Recorded

That was the scoring but the real rarity of this game rested with the defenses, which produced these rare bits:

The two clubs punted 18 times—10 by Chandler and eight by Villanueva.

The ball changed hands 24 times.

Both teams were held to a minus 11 yards passing (net), with the Cowboys leading, a minus 1 to a minus 10.

Quarterbacks were dumped 14 times with Morton getting it nine times and Starr five.

In fact, the minus yardage for the two teams breaks the league record of one yard gained by both teams—the Chicago Cardinals and Eagles in 1936. The question with the record, however, is how passing yardage was figured. Losses by the passer on an attempt are decided from the team total but not from his individual figure.

The Packers were limited to seven first downs and a fantastic 63 yards for the day and three of the first downs didn't come until the last three minutes when the Bays ran out the clock on Starr's 10-yard

Colts' Fourth Period Comeback Defeats Los Angeles, 35-20

Unitas Hits on Two TD Aerials In Final Stanza for Fifth Win

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP) — "The only thing I want to do is keep on winning," says Coach Don Shula of the Baltimore Colts.

It was his answer Sunday both to whether he keeps one eye on the scoreboard to see how Green Bay is doing or in what manner the Colts manage to win.

"I don't care what the other teams (meaning Green Bay) are doing," said Shula. "I'm too involved worrying somebody may sneak in and knock us off."

The lowly Los Angeles Rams had him worried Sunday.

"There was a point there when . . ." he said and his voice trailed off.

He didn't have to explain to those who had seen the game. It was with nearly five minutes in the last period gone and Baltimore trailing 20-14.

The Colts had scored a touchdown on a pass from quarterback John Unitas to end Raymond Berry. But the officials called interference by Berry because he caught the pass.

Set Colts Back

That set the Colts back to the 21. Then Unitas was snowed under by three Rams near the 40 and chances for the go-ahead touchdown faded. But the officials ruled a Ram had grabbed Unitas' face mask and put the ball back on the 21.

On the next play, Los Angeles was offsides and two plays later Unitas hit Orr with a touchdown pass.

The Colts were on their own officials. There have been complaints for years about domineering Owner Coach George Halas of the Bears.

Jones Admits Guilt

Dave Jones, defensive end for the Rams, admitted he was guilty of the face mask grabbing of Unitas and also on Tony Lorick. But he said, "I think they ought to change the rules."

Shula shrugged his shoulders over the officiating. He conferred with Berry on his interference call. The end was puzzled, saying he wasn't even aware the call had been against him until after he reached the locker room.

Unitas said the Rams gave him about as much trouble passing as anyone because of 48 with last down the next time they had the ball. He told Unitas to go for the one yard. Jerry Hill hit into a pile up and the Colts got the first down.

They marched right on for another touchdown and Unitas added one more with 34 seconds remaining after a recovered fumble on a 25-yard pass to Orr.

Coach Harland Svare was not happy with either the penalties that last touchdown.

"Winning in Baltimore is getting as hard to do as winning in Chicago," said Svare in an indirect but certain reference to

Lombardi Pays Tribute To Packers' Defense And Special Teams

Discounts Importance Of Statistics, Denies Bays Were Lucky

BY LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service

MILWAUKEE — Those customarily unsung units, the platoons, elicited glowing and grateful tribute from an otherwise tight-lipped Vince Lombardi here Sunday afternoon.

Firmly declining to make apologies for the Packers' grubbed-out 13-3 decision of the Dallas Cowboys that didn't "figure," he declared, "our special teams were great — as was our defense."

Lombardi added, with considerable vigor, "there are still two parts to this game, you know — offense and defense and special teams."

The offense, a Milwaukee scribe imprudently suggested, had not been too impressive, at least statistically, making pointed and somewhat gratuitious reference to a 196 to 63 Dallas edge in the figures.

"I don't give a damn about statistics," the Packer headmaster rapped, "as long as we win. I've told you many times statistics don't mean a thing — the important thing is whether you win."

This, inevitably enough, prompted introduction of another statistic. The Packers and their reluctant victims had punted 18 times, an all-time National Football League record, it was noted.

"I didn't know that," Lombardi said, without perceptible pleasure, an understandable reaction considering the punt is seldom employed as offensive weapon.

Switching to another tack, a second Milwaukee scribe queried, "Wouldn't you say you were lucky?"

"I don't think we were lucky," Lombardi shot back. "How can you say we were lucky? Our special teams caused them to fumble . . . as I said, there are two parts to the game, offense and defense. And our special teams and our defense were great."

Elaborating upon this point, Lombardi went a step further, asserting, "I thought our defense was great. "Any time you hold anybody to three points, you've done a helluva job. And any time you hold a team to 13 points, you've done a helluva job.

"It was," he summed up with a final smile, "a battle of defenses."

All 10 ML Teams Slated to Return

Fond du Lac and Des Moines Reported Interested in Joining

WISCONSIN RAPIDS (AP) — All 10 teams in the Class A Midwest Baseball League will return next season and at least two other cities are interested in joining, league officials reported Sunday.

Delegates to the three-state league's annual meeting discussed the possibility of obtaining additional player contracts from major league clubs as a means of expansion. Des Moines, Iowa, and Fond du Lac groups have expressed interest in teams although neither city sent representatives to the meeting.

The league decided to add an all-star game in 1966. It will retain a 126-game schedule, with the season split into equal halves again next year. The season will run from April 24 through Aug. 26.

The present 10 teams are Wisconsin Rapids and Fox Cities, Wis.; Decatur and Quincy, Ill.; the Quad Cities of Illinois and Iowa and Cedar Rapids, Clinton, Dubuque, Burlington and Waterloo, Iowa.

Fox Cities has until Nov. 1 to find a working agreement. All other clubs will be in contact with their respective farm directors in hopes of keeping the Foxes in the league. Several major league clubs have already made contact with the Foxes and President Bob Rahn and members of the board will be meeting with various farm directors later this week to see what arrangements can be made in obtaining a franchise for 1966.

Fran Tarkenton Paces Amazing Viking Victory

Minnesotans Trail By 21 at Half but Rally for 42-41 Win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Movies won't be enjoyable for the San Francisco 49ers this week as this week as they prepare for Sunday's Kezar Stadium invasion by Baltimore.

Pictures will show a scrambling Minnesota Viking quarterback, Fran Tarkenton, three times bringing his club back from 21-point deficits for an eventual 42-41 victory.

The 49ers won't like a couple of officiating calls any more than they liked them when they were made at crucial points in the game.

Still nobody can deny Tarkenton completed 21 of 35 pass attempts for 407 yards, a career yardage record for the Viking whose best previous was 311 against Chicago last year.

In the space of 5 minutes 36 seconds starting late in the third period, Minnesota scored three times—first on a 21-yard run by Tommy Mason and twice on passes—14 and 59 yards to Paul Flatley.

"He scrambles around until someone gets open—which they were all day," said 49er Coach Jack Christiansen, after the outcome left both teams with 3-3 National Football League records.

Led at Half, 35-14

The 49ers led 21-0, 28-7 and by the half it was 35-14. Quarterback John Brodie, who connected on 19 passes for 264 yards for the afternoon, had hit Bernie Casey with scoring shots from 36, 24 and 21 yards out. Ken Willard had crashed a yard for a score and Jack Chapple had run eight yards with a fumble.

Mason had scored on runs of seven and one but had fumbled

John Shea, Writer of Notre Dame Victory Song, Dies at 80

HOLYOKE, Mass. (AP) — Former State Sen. John F. Shea, who with his late brother wrote the Notre Dame University victory song, died Sunday after a year of failing health. He was 80.

John Shea, who was twice baseball captain at Notre Dame, wrote the words to the now famous song that starts: "Cheer, Cheer for Old Notre Dame. . ."

His brother, the Rev. Michael Shea, who graduated in 1904, two years ahead of John, wrote the music for the song.

Bukich and Bears Whip Detroit, 38-10

Chicago Quarterback Throws 3 TD Passes in Third Straight Win

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP) — The Old Man stood firm and refused to make any comments about his Chicago Bears' 38-10 victory over the Detroit Lions Sunday.

"We play Green Bay next Sunday," said Owner-Coach George Halas, "and I'm not telling anybody anything."

The Bears had scored their third straight victory after three opening losses. The fact that they have a 3-3 record in the National Football League against Green Bay's 6-0 mark didn't bother Halas.

"If we can win next Sunday, then I might have a statement to make," said Halas. "But until then, mum's the word."

The Bears have reversed the field after losing their first three games. They have won three in a row and have done it with such authority that they once again must be considered title contenders.

Defense Instrumental

Once again the Bear defense was instrumental. Doug Atkins and Dick Butkus were the main cogs in the triumph over the Lions.

But the forgotten man is quarterback Rudy Bukich. For the third successive week, Bukich engineered the Bears to victory.

Bukich completed 11 of 15 attempts for 120 yards and three touchdowns.

But more important, Bukich didn't have an interception. In fact, he has worked the route in the last three games where the Bears have had but one interception and Chicago won all three games.

Halas will hold closed workouts this week in hopes of upsetting Green Bay. He knows the Bears have arrived but the fact that they have three losses might work against their title hopes.

Detroit had the ball for only one play from scrimmage as the Bears swept to a quick 10-0 lead. Chicago took the opening kickoff and marched 40 yards before Roger LeClerc booted a 26-yard field goal for a 3-0 lead.

Pietrosante Fumbles

On Detroit's first play from scrimmage, Nick Pietrosante fumbled and on the next play Bukich hit Johnny Morris with a 27-yard touchdown pass.

Early in the second quarter, Milt Plum fumbled, and the Bears recovered on the Detroit seven-yard line. Again only one play was needed for a touchdown. This one a swing pass from Bukich to Gale Sayers.

Detroit's Tom Watkins took the following kickoff and raced 84 yards to the Bear nine. But the Bear defense held again and the Lions had to settle for a 17-yard field goal by Wayne Walker.

Fred Biletnikoff, who got hooked for life under the goalposts, finally has hooked on to a pass under fire.

The rookie Oakland flanker collected his wife, Jerrylyn, in a marriage ceremony performed under the goalposts after starring in the Gator Bowl game but had collected only splinters as a pro until he made his long-awaited debut Sunday.

Getting his chance to play for the first time with Bo Roberson traded to Buffalo, Biletnikoff caught seven passes for 118 yards and was instrumental in keeping four scoring drives going as the Raiders defeated Boston 30-21 in an American Football League game.

And Biletnikoff was as happy as a kid with a $150,000 bonus — which he reportedly received for signing with Oakland.

"I was really nervous in the exhibition games last night," said Biletnikoff as he explained the poor pre-season showing that had kept him on the bench. "I think that breaking in this late in the season really helped me. I felt real loose, not nervous at all.

"I was generally happy with the way I played but I should have burned that guy defensive back Dan Webb a couple more times."

That would have made Webb weep.

Sets Up Scores

All Biletnikoff did was catch an 18-yard pass from Tom Flores as the Raiders drove for their field goal, caught 12 and 21-yard passes from Dick Wood as Oakland put two more field goals on the scoreboard, then latched on to a 12-yarder that led to the Raiders' first touchdown and a 16-0 lead.

Roberson, meanwhile, caught three passes for 35 yards in his debut for the Bills, who rode Jack Kemp's aerials to a 31-13 victory over Denver that boosted their Eastern Division leading record to 6-1.

In the only other Sunday game, veteran George Blanda passed for five touchdowns and Jack Spikes kicked a game-winning field goal with 17 seconds left in Houston's 38-36 triumph over Kansas City.

Western Division leading San Diego, the league's only unbeaten team, brought its record to 5-0-2 by walloping the New York Jets 34-9 Saturday night behind the running of Paul Lowe and the passing of John Hadl.

Wood replaced Flores in the second quarter for the Raiders, second in the West with a 4-2-1 record, and clinched the game by hitting Art Powell with touchdown passes covering 15 and 22 yards. Babe Parilli passed for two Boston touchdowns as the Patriots' record dropped to 0-6-1.

Kemp Hits 14 of 22

Kemp completed 14 of 22 passes for 280 yards and two touchdowns — a 72-yarder to Billy Joe and an eight-yarder to Charley Ferguson — while the Broncos double teamed Roberson. Wray Carlton scored twice for Buffalo on one-yard plunges after pass interference calls. Cookie Gilchrist gained 7 yards on the ground for Denver, now 3-4.

Trailing 17-0 at halftime, the Oilers pulled ahead as Blanda passed 64 yards to Charlie Frazier, 49 to Ode Burrell and 17 and nine to Willie Frazier. Blanda also hit Bob McLeod with a nine-yarder but Spikes' 18-yard field goal proved the winner as Houston evened its record at 3-3. Kansas City is 3-3-1.

Lowe gained 110 yards in 16 carries and scored on eight and 59 yard runs while Hadl completed 16 of 28 passes for 182 yards and one touchdown in the Chargers' victory over the Jets, now 0-5-1. Mike Taliaferro went almost all the way at quarterback for New York, completing 17 of 35 passes for 205 yards.

Willie Davis (87) Dives in for a fumble recovery, which was to set up the Packers' only touchdown in a 13-3 victory over Dallas in Milwaukee Sunday. Other key defenders in the play are Lionel Aldridge (82) and Ray Nitschke (66). (Post - Crescent News Service Photo)

Rushes for 177 Yards Against Giants

Brown Paces Cleveland's 38-14 Romp

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — If Jim Brown really is going to retire after the 1966 season it will be none too soon for the New York Giants.

The Cleveland fullback ran over, around and through the Giants Sunday, caught passes and even threw one for total yardage of 234 in a 38-14 romp that put the Browns alone at the top of the National Football Leagues Eastern Conference.

"This was the greatest single game effort I have ever seen by Jim," said Art Modell, the owner of the Browns who has the former Syracuse star signed through 1966.

"It's hard to say if this was his best game," said Allie Sherman, the disappointed coach of the losing Giants. "But he's the best back I've ever seen."

Brown, 29, wasn't about to rate his own efforts. After all, he did gain 237 yards rushing in games against Los Angeles in 1957 and Philadelphia in 1961.

When Galen Fiss, the Browns' captain, thrust his fist through a knot of reporters around Jim's locker and handed him the game ball, the powerful fullback smiled.

Others Come Through

"There is a certain satisfaction in having the other fellows on the team think you rate the game ball," said Jim. "This is my first this year. There have been other people who have come through in key situations who have earned it more than I."

Pressed about the recurrent retirement stories, Brown tried to clear the air.

"I have a contract running through 1966. The only way I might change my mind about continuing would be if the management happened to be on a real spot. But we have some fine backs coming along in Ernie Green and LeRoy Kelly. They probably will be building their offense around Kelly."

Asked what he would do if he quits football, Brown said:

"I have a contract to make some movies. I have a couple of small businesses, a billiard parlor in Kent, Ohio with six other players and an interest in a West Coast publishing company.

"I have a couple of other ideas. I'm qualified to coach. I have several things on my mind."

When Modell heard Brown talk of his future, the club owner said:

"A Bit Premature'

"It is my hope and objective that Jim will continue on in Cleveland in some important capacity. But isn't this retirement talk a bit premature?"

It sure was. Brown carried 24 times for 177 yards, caught three passes for 18 yards and threw one touchdown pass of 39 yards to flanker Gary Collins.

Frank Ryan, the champions' quarterback, tossed a pair of TD passes to little Walter Roberts, the stand-in for injured Paul Warfield, and also hit Brown with a five-yard scoring pass. Ernie Green scored the fifth touchdown from the one after Brown carried half the Giants on his back in a one-man sustained drive.

New York scored its touchdowns on a two-yard run by Chuck Mercein and Tucker Frederickson's one yard plunge.

Cleveland gained 526 yards to the Giants' 314 in its most consistent offensive effort of the season.

Brown, a super star having a fine day, nabbed a five-yard scoring pass from Ryan in the third period, a few minutes after the fullback had thrown a 39-yard TD toss to Gary Collins.

In the final period, Brown ripped into the line time and again as the Browns moved for a fifth touchdown, actually scored on a short plunge by Ernie Green.

Lou Groza's 24-yard field goal put the Browns on the board in the first period, but the Giants went out front on a one-yard run by rookie Tucker Frederickson, after a pass interference penalty against Bob Franklin.

The Giants' lead lasted from 13:14 of the first period until Ryan hit Roberts for the first time with his 21-yard toss at 5:06 of the second.

Earl Morrall, New York's new quarterback who had a big day last week against Philadelphia, connected with his first five in the first half, but two costly fumbles by Steve Thurlow ruined the Giants.

Thurlow fumbled on the Cleveland 21 in the second period, after Jimmy Patton had recovered a Cleveland fumble by Frank Ryan. Thurlow lost control of the ball again later in the second period with Bob Franklin recovering on the Cleveland 34.

Except for two 43-yard field goal attempts by rookie Bob Timberlake, one wide and the second blocked, the Giants didn't threaten again until the final period. With Gary Wood at quarterback, the Giants finally scored again at 11:15 of the fourth on a two-yard run by rookie Chuck Mercein.

Black Hawks Sweep Pair Of NHL Tilts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One weekend may be a poor yardstick but first returns from the National Hockey League indicate that the rich are going to get richer this season.

The Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens and runner-up Chicago Black Hawks got off to flying starts in the NHL race by sweeping two games apiece over the weekend.

The Canadiens, opening with the same line-up that tripped Chicago in the seven-game Cup finals last spring, outscored New York 4-3 Sunday night after routing Detroit 8-1 in their home debut Saturday night. The Hawks, paced by muscleman Bobby Hull and elusive Kenny Wharram, followed up Saturday night's 4-0 victory at Toronto with a 6-2 romp over Boston.

Detroit, the regular season winner in 1964-65, rebounded with a 3-0 victory over Toronto Sunday night, extending the Maple Leafs' goal famine to 120 minutes.

Washington Wins, 20-14

Jurgensen, Redskins Drop Cards Out of First

BY MIKE RECHT

ST. LOUIS (AP) — For five weeks, the Washington Redskins made enough errors on the football field to make the 1965 season look like one big mistake.

But Sunday, they erased them all!

With quarterback Sonny Jurgensen at the helm, Washington rubbed out the St. Louis Cardinals 24-20, its first victory after five straight defeats in the National Football League.

And because the Cardinals failed this test, they fell into second place in the Eastern Division with a 4-2 mark behind Cleveland, 5-1.

"We made the plays today instead of making mistakes," said Jurgensen, who was benched two weeks ago when St. Louis clobbered the Redskins 37-16.

The Cardinals coaches agreed.

"They didn't get the yardage in the statistics, but they made the big play," moaned defensive coach Chuck Drulis of the Cardinals. "They saved them all for today."

Shouldered Blame

Jurgensen, who has shouldered much of the blame for Washington's poor start after its high pre-season rating, threw for 195 yards on 12 completions in 14 pass attempts. He connected on his last 10 tosses — three short of the record — and three of them went for touchdowns.

"It was by far his best day this season and as good as any last year," Redskin Coach Bill McPeak said. "And our receivers caught everything he threw."

With less than two minutes left in the half, Jurgensen teamed with Bobby Mitchell on a 53-yard scoring play made possible by key blocks from Pres Carpenter and Pat Richter.

An earlier big play, a blocked punt, set up Bob Jencks' 17-yard field goal.

In the third period, Jurgensen hit Charley Taylor on a 43-yard pass play and then pitched 14 yards to Taylor for the touchdown and a 17-10 lead.

Scrambles Away

In the fourth period, an interference call cost the Cardinals 38 yards and put the ball on their one. Jurgensen, back to pass on third down, was trapped, but managed to scramble away and throw the last yard to rookie Jerry Smith for the decisive score.

"That was the crucial play," St Louis Coach Wally Lemm said. "We had Jurgensen and we let him get away."

The Cardinals, playing without regular quarterback Charley Johnson, who has an injured shoulder, rode Buddy Humphreys arm to a touchdown in the final two minutes, but a final attempt ended in the closing seconds when Johnny Sample intercepted a deflected Humphrey pass.

Lemm was satiesfied with Humphrey, who completed 17 of 26 throws for 215 yards.

"We planned to stay on the ground the first quarter to give Buddy time to get his feet planted," Lemm said. "Maybe we were conservative a bit too long."

Nelsen Sparks Pittsburgh to 20-14 Victory

Steeler Defense Stymies Eagles For Initial Win

BY RALPH BRSENTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Nixon, coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers, and Joe Kuharich, coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, are poles apart on how to develop a young pro quarterback.

The philosophies of the two on the subject were very much in evidence after the Steelers beat the Eagles Sunday 20 - 14 for their first National Football League victory over five defeats.

"When I tok the job," said Nixon, "I told Art Rooney (Steelers' owner) I was going with Bill Nelsen at quarterback if I lost all 14 games."

In putting himself in a sink-or-swim situation with the former Southern California passer, Nixon said:

"If you want a quarterback you have to let him play. That's what we are doing with Nelsen. He has had very little exposure in this league before this year. Come hell or high water he's going to get it. He's going to be a good one."

Passes to Lind

Nelsen's first touchdown pass of the season, a four-yarder to Mike Lind in the end zone turned out to be the winning touchdown. He directed an 80-yard drive in 13 plays, including completions of 29, 12 and 17 yards.

Kuharich, on the other hand, although he has a 15-yard contract with the Eagles, refuses to give young Jack Concannon, the former Boston College whiz, the same treatment. Kuharich says he will go with King Hill, a veteran of eight years, although the coach admits "Hill gets perturbed in certain situations. All quarterbacks get perturbed," he says.

The Eagles have been going with Hill since Norm Snead injured a knee three games ago.

Kuharich did go to Concannon in the second period and played him the rest of the way after a Hill pass was intercepted and returned 82 yards for a touchdown by Jim Bradshaw. But he said:

"We decided to use Jack because Hill was a bit perturbed about the interception. If Concannon had not been able to move the team we would have put Hill back into the game." He indicated Hill would play next week if Snead isn't ready.

Fuzzy 'Bows Out' of Hero's Role

Packers' Fumble Instigators Hazy On Details; Starr Bemoans Passing

Post-Crescent News Service

MILWAUKEE — Who hit hwom?

It was the burning post-game question in the Packers' quiet County Stadium quarters, where the thunderous instigators of three highly opportune Dallas fumbles were being pressed for details Sunday afternoon.

The principals were a trifle hazy, understandably, since each of these items, two of which had triggered the Pack's final 10 points a 13-3 victory over the Tightfisted Cowboys, had erupted from mass of hurtling bodies.

It was, as a matter of fact, a little hard to find a hero "Fuzzy" Thurston, who had appeared to be a major figure in shaking Mel Renfro from the ball on a third quarter punt return, said emphatically. "No, I didn't hit Renfro."

Taking refuge in a familiar phrase, Fuzzy added. "I'd have to see the movies, but I think Renfro ran into his own man (and so, it developed, he had).

"I hit somebody, but I don't think it was him," said the veteran guard, slowly wending his way shower-ward on a gimpy left leg. ("I hurt my knee, but it's only a slight sprain," he explained).

"The fumble? I had a hand on it, but Coffey (Junior) recovered it."

Willie Davis, a towering figure all afternoon, also wasn't entirely sure what had preceded his fortuitous recovery. "Somebody hit Morton—I think it was Aldridge (Lionel) and Kostelnic (Ron)—tightfisted and I think Lionel made the first contact.

"Morton tried to spin out of it and the ball popped loose and bounced right to me." Willie reported with an offhand grin, making no attempt to crowd the heroes' bench."

Henry Jordan, it turned out, also had been involved. "I pulled the ball out of his hand," Hank said, appending a little wistfully, "I thought there's a chance for a touchdown'—I could have fallen over the goal line with it—but the ball fell to the ground and Willie recovered it."

Another defensive luminary, sophomore Tom Brown, had entertained fleeting visions of going all the way following his second quarter interception, a contribution that keyed Don Chandler's first field goal.

"I thought for a second I might have a shot at it, but the quarterback (Morton) cut me off, and I tried to go back and," Tom confided with a rueful smile. "I ran into a lot of other garbage there."

He appeared on the verge of a second interception in the Green Bay end zone in the fourth quarter, but the opportunity dissolved when receiver Buddy Dial "intervened." "I should have had that ball," the slender Maryland Alumnus said. "He hit me before I had the ball, but I should have had it, no matter if he touched me or not."

Now alternate captain of the defense, Davis assessed the overall effort in two words. "I'm satisfied," he said, then added, "I'm a little disappointed they moved the ball on the ground so well on us, but they've got some quick inside runners. Our lateral pursuit was trying to cut their running off wide, and they would catch you going the wrong way — you couldn't get back in time.

"But we thought we had to rush the passer," Davis pointed out, "because of their great outside receivers."

Further analyzing the success of the Cowboy ground game, king-sized Lee Roy Caffey revealed, "they were faking the sweep to the outside, and as the linebackers moved out, the quarterback would turn and hand the ball off on a "give" play to the inside."

Jim Taylor, who had figured prominently in one bright moment in an otherwise bleak afternoon for the offense, capsuled his 7-yard touchdown sortie in two sentences. "It was just a sweep play back to the weak side," he said simply. "And Jerry (Kramer) really came out of there nice to block for me — I think he cut off two men."

Forthrightly discussing the Pack's lack of attack, quarterback Bart Starr observed, "because we weren't able to sustain anything, we never could see whether our game plan would work. We had some things that worked, but only one play here and there — we never got a chance to see if our counter plays would work.

"We never got a chance to sustain anything, because of their great defense — and I think they should get all the credit in the world, they're really tough.

"It was kind of frustrating," Starr, the league's leading passer heading into the game, admitted. "I couldn't hit a donkey with a handful of peas today. There were times they didn't get me — when the protection was good — and I still missed 'em. That's what's frustrating. There were several times I could have taken us out of a hole."

Towering Forrest Gregg, one of the NFL's premier offensive linemen, also paid wry tribute to the enemy. "They were coming on pretty smartly," he said dryly. "But our offense didn't play a good game — we didn't sustain a thing."

In the Cowboys' quarters, Renfro corroborated Thurston's suggestion that he had been sabotaged by "his own man" on that third quarter fumble.

"I saw daylight there for a second, and then I saw this white shirt coming at me," he said, "and I thought, 'What the hell. . . ?"

The white shirt belonged to teammate Mitch Johnson, who explained, "I was coming back. And I already had committed myself — I couldn't turn."

twice — three plays before Willard's run and also on the play when Chapple tallied.

Tarkenton opened the third period scoring with a 10-yard pass to Hal Bedsole for a touchdown. The 49ers retaliated with a 37-yard Tommy Davis field goal.

A pass interference call against Jim Johnson on an incomplete Tarkenton pass meant for Red Phillips moved the Vikings from their 47 to the 49er 21. Mason ran in to score on the next play, starting the Minnesota surge.

Kezar fans howled at the interference call as it appeared Johnson was playing the ball.

Then after the Vikings went ahead on Tarkenton's two scoring passes to Flatley and the score stood 42-35, Brodie hit Parks in the end zone only to have the touchdown nullified by an interference call against the receiver.

After that interference call, the 49ers had to settle for another Davis field goal—this time from the 22.

Threatened Again

Still they threatened again when Mason fumbled and Kerm Alexander recovered at the Viking 41. Defensive back Larry Vargo spoiled the victory bid with a great interception at the five on a play starting at the Viking 29. I was the only interception of the game.

At the time, the 49ers were in position for a field goal which would have put them ahead.

During one stage lasting five minutes, 36 seconds near the end of the third period, the Vikings hit for three quick touchdowns, astounding the crowd of 42,680 in Kezar Stadium.

Mason started the rally with a 21-yard touchdown run, and Tarkenton followed with his two scoring pitches tod Flatley.

pass to Paul Hornung and two runs by Hornung of 16 yards

Starr finished with four completions in 19 attempts for 42 yards while Morton hit 10 of 20 for 61 yards and the 2 interceptions.

Leads Rushers

Don Perkins led the rushers with 133 yards on 22 carries and set up the Cowboys' only score with a 43-yard run to the Packer 19 Hornung led the Packers with 42 yards in eight carries

Defensively, Davis was the Packers' standout. He made a dozen tackles and gave Morton fits

The Cowboys finished with 192 yards for the day, with the rookie, Morton, going the distance Oddly enough, the Cowboys were credited with 193 yards rushing, the difference behind the minus 1 yard via passing.

The Packers' platoons must come in for some bows. Cowboy punt returners gained only eight yards in four tries and the Bays forced one fumble with just plain hard knocking, which set up Taylor's TD

The Packers, in 53 plays, averaged 1 4 yards while the Cowboys averaged 3.1 in 62 plays.

Villanueva and Chandler punted five times in the first quarter, with each club making two first downs. Sharp tackles by Davis, Henry Jordan, Lionel Aldridge and Doug Hart helped along the first quarter punts

Early in the second quarter the Cowboys moved into Green Bay land for the first time reaching the Packer 34 At this point, offensive interference was called on Buddy Dial who interfered with Adderley's right to take the ball and the Cowboys had to punt

Chandler and Villanueva punted five times in the second quarter and the only action was a first down by the Packers Despite an in motion penalty, Starr hit Boyd Dowler for a 17 yard gain the longest pass of the day, and the Bays were on the Cowboy 40—the attack stalled, with Taylor getting dumped for a 4-yard loss on third down, and Chandler booted his first field goal from the 44

Grind 66 Yards

The Cowboys took the second half kickoff and ground 66 yards in seven plays, with Perkins' 43 yard run behind the big move The Cowboys reached the Packer 19 and the Bays got tough forcing Villanuevas 20-yard field for a 3 3 score

Two series later Chandler got off a 50-yard punt and Renfro fumbled when he was hit by Fuzzy Thurston and Bill Curry, with Junior Coffey recovering.

Three plays later, Chandler gave the Pack a 6 3 lead with a 22 yard foeld goal

The Cowboys started on their own 17 but on second down, Davis knocked Morton for a 7-yard loss. Perkins then fumbled coming up the middle and Davis recovered on the 7. From there, Taylor scored and the final score was set just before the third period ended

The Cowboys made a solid drive with 5:00 left in the game when Morton threw to Buddy Dial for 17 yards to the Packer 35. Jim Stiger ran 16 yards to the 19 for another first down but Morton lost control of the snapback and Ron Kostelnik recovered

With 2 56 left, the Packers froze out the clock, getting three straight first downs

The Cowboys never used Bob Hayes, the world's fastest human, though it had been reported he had recovered enough from an injury to play

Lombardi Pays Tribute to Bay Defense

small, improvised coaches' room opposite the Packers' quarters. Lombardi abruptly terminated the press conference with "That's all the questions . . . I don't have any more answers."

He couldn't be effervescent, in view of the outcome, but Cowboy Coach Tom Landry acepted the disappointing result with surprising equanimity — and modicum of quiet pride in his tigers' hard-nosed performance.

The ex-New York Giant aide, a former Lombardi coaching colleague, said:

"This is as good a defensive game as we have played," a statement which the Packer offense is ready to take at face value. "Both our pass rush and our coverage were very good.

"Of course, we've played well for the last two weeks — we played well against the Browns (a 23-17 defeat) last week, too."

The tall, slender Texan also was obviously pleased with the way the Dallas attack had functioned against the Packers' own grudging defense, observing with a smile, "We did a pretty good job of moving the ball — Perkins (Don) was running well.

What had grounded Bob Hayes? "The world's fastest human had been withheld because he got a bruised ankle in the Brown game last week," Landry explained. "He could have played, but we had Clarke (Frank) running his spot all week so we thought, under the circumstances, it would be better to use him."

And what of the quarterback situationu Did he intende to stay with Craig Morton? "I don't know," Tom replied with an accompanying shake of the head "They (Morton and fellow freshman Jerry Rhome) are rookies in this league, and it's pretty tough "

Speedster Mel Renfro, an NFL sophomore, had made his first offensive appearance in Dallas silks just prior to the Cowboys' final fumble in the fourth quarter, recovered by the Pack's Ron Kostelnik to quash the Texans' last surge, he disclosed.

Triple Wing Used

"He was the slot back in the triple wing," Landry said, "but they (the Packers) picked it up pretty well. They moved into a zone defense almost immediately, I noticed "

The Packers' early discovery of Renfro's presence had triggered that final fumbie, Morton later confessed. "I heard a Green Bay fellow say, 'Watch Renfro, watch Renfro'," the ex-University of California luminary reported "So I tried to get the play off in a hurry and I pulled away from the ball "

Pressed for his estimate of the Pack, Landry said. "We think they're one of the better teams in the league St Louis is pretty tough, too, we find, and so are the Browns

"This was a defensive battle, of course, and the Packers have a great defense — we have the greatest respect for it because of the fine athletes they have in it."

Speaking of defense, had he been surprised at the final score, something of a "throwback" in these days of double digits? "We didn't expect to hold 'em to 13 points," he smiled, "not in this league. I wouldn't have been surprised at 20-17, or something like that, but I certainly didn't expect 13-3. . .I thought both defenses played extremely well."

Pheasant Hunters Experience More Success Than in '64

MADISON (AP) Pheasant hunters braving the soggy opening weekend of the 1965 season found their total bag was higher —in some instances up to one-third more — than last fall, the state Conservation Department reported Sunday night

A department spokesman said cold, damp and windy weather plus generally wet grounds kept the hunter pressure down when the season opened at noon Saturday

The limit on the opening day of the season was one male bird per hunter. Two males per day is the limit for the remainder of the season through Nov 28

Eighty two pheasant were bagged by 123 opening day hunters at Vernon Marsh in Waukesha County

Other representative areas and their opening day totals included

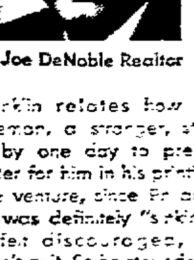
It isn't just bullfrogs that croak. There's always a few other "croakers" around. But let Ben Franklin tell the story, as he does in his famous autobiography: "There are croakers in every country, always predicting its ruin. Such a one lived in Philadelphia; a person of note, an elderly man with a wise look and a very grave manner of speaking."



Joe DeNoble Realtor

Franklin relates how this gentleman, a stranger, stopped by one day to predict disaster for him in his printing-house venture, since Philadelphia was definitely "sinking." Ben felt discouraged, but couldn't quit. So he stayed with his business, and became very successful!

Franklin adds: "This man continued to live here, refusing for many years to buy a home because 'all was going to destruction.'"

"At last," Ben reports, "I had the pleasure of seeing him give FIVE times as much for a house as he might have bought it for when he first began his croaking."

The moral should be clear: "Croaking" does not bring anything — except unhappiness to the croaker. And eventually, even the croaker realizes that if he wants to acquire a home, or property of any kind, he has to act, not croak. But by then, the prices are higher!

Property values will continue to climb. Why not ACT now, — to get a real "bargain"! Let us show you our selection of sound values.

Rising Profits Talk Dollars to Stock Market

Some Experts Warn Margins May be Thin Next Year

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Soaring profits and fatter profit margins have been speaking dollar and cents talk to the stock market. Traders have been bidding up prices of many issues out of admiration for current earnings reports and prospects for still lusher months to come.

But now some of the experts are warning that profit margins may narrow again next year and, a more immediate worry, that for some industries the big increase in profits may even peter out in the final months of this year.

Wall Street can shrug this off by pointing out that as of today profits for U S corporations as a whole — although definitely not for all companies and all industries — never were higher.

Net Income Gain

The gain in the total net income after taxes since the economy pulled out of the last recession early in 1961 has been a remarkable 80 per cent.

So far this year, corporate profits are running a fifth higher than last year, at more than $44 billion.

Stock traders also closely watch cash flow. This is profits after taxes plus depreciation. The latter is what a corporation can charge off to wear, tear and obsolescence before figuring its tax bill.

This cash from profits and depreciation has reached $74 billion this year, Fortune magazine notes in its upcoming issue, for a gain of more than 60 per cent since early 1961. Part of this is due to more generous tax credits for investment in new plant and equipment and to relaxed rules for figuring depreciation.

Increased Use of Capacity

Can the steadily increasing total of profits continue?

Much of the recent spurt in profits can be traced to increased use of existing capacity as demand for goods rose. But now industry is expanding its capacity again at a fast clip around 5.5 per cent a year. Since output is growing at a slower rate, profitable use of consecutive days.

Wage scales are rising. And since productivity — labor unit costs — is rising less spectacularly than a year ago, business leaders say that production costs are increasing faster than are prices. Hence, the profit margin — the percentage of dollar sales carried down to net income — is due to slacken.

Corporate treasurers — and stock traders — had been taking a lot of comfort in the rise in recent months in the profit margins of manufacturing companies. This year, the after-tax profits per dollar of sales has risen to 5.8 cents, from 5.5 cents a year ago, and considerably above the leaner years in the early 1960s.

The better margin came in large part from the reduction in the amount of idle plant and equipment which plagued the late 1950s and carried over into the early years of this decade. Now, with a new expansion boom under way, idle capacity could build up again.

Even if sales continue to grow, excess capacity and rising production costs can cut profit margins, hold back profit gains, and cause investments in some companies to lose a bit of their current glamor.

Many think sales will grow so fast that none of this will happen and that once again the cautious will be confounded.

They can point to last week's stock market when the Dow Jones index of 30 industrial stocks rose to a new high on five consecutive days.

Leveling Income Way To Save Tax Dollars

BY SYLVIA PORTER

You have only 67 days left in which to make the moves which will save taxes on your 1965 income tax return. You will be too late if you wait until next year, when you actually fill out your return. Thus, in this series of seven columns I will submit a blueprint for adjustments you can make between now and Dec. 31 to cut your 1965 tax bill to a legal minimum.

As a general rule, try to control your income and deductions for both 1965 and 1966 so that your expected top tax bracket is the same for both years — for this will give you the lowest total tax for both years. This general rule is based on the assumption that individual tax rates will be the same in 1966 as in 1965.

First of a Series

Your success in controlling your tax brackets depends on your being able to switch your income or your expense deductions between 1965 and 1966 to achieve the leveling off of income brackets. For instance, say you're a married salesman who has had a good year and expects to wind up with $12,000 of taxable income in 1965. You normally would expect no more than $8,000 of taxable income in 1966. Say that late next month you get a special order that will net you $1,000 more.

Payment in 1966

If it's possible for you to fulfill the order in early January or to arrange in advance not to be paid until 1966, you will save tax money, for, with $12,000 of 1965 income, your top bracket is 22 per cent ($8,000-$12,000). But if you collect another $1,000 in 1965, this will be taxed in the next higher bracket ($12,000-$16,000) at 25 per cent. If you hold off the $1,000 payment a few weeks and add it to your anticipated $8,000 in 1966, your $1,000 will be taxed in the 22 per cent instead of the 25 per cent bracket, and this alone will save you $30 in taxes.

Even if you're in the same tax bracket in both 1965 and 1966, it may pay you to switch income from this year to next — for by so doing you postpone paying the tax on that amount for another year and thereby keep the use of that tax money for the year. Say you're the same salesman — except that you expect to have $8,000 of income in both 1965 and 1966 — and you get the order netting you $1,000 more. Although the tax on the $1,000 would be 22 per cent whether you collected it this December or next January, you'd keep the personal use of $220 in tax money for another year if you could defer the $1,000 of income into 1966.

Lower Rate

While the general rule calls for shifting income and expenses to keep 1965 and 1966 brackets equal, there are some situations which indicate a different strategy.

For instance, if you're now single and plan to be married in 1966, you will pay lower rates next year than this, or if you're now married and are to be divorced in 1966, the reverse will be true. Where your tax rates will be different in the two years because of personal and family changes, your shift of income should be directed to the lower rate year, if possible.

If you head a corporation, there is no tax benefit from shifting income and expenses between 1965 and 1966 if your taxable income will be more than $25,000 in each of the two years or no more than $25,000 in each of the two years. In these cases, though, it may be worthwhile to defer income to 1966, if possible, to keep the use of the tax money for another year. But if your taxable income for one of the years is expected to be over $25,000 while the other year's income won't exceed $25,000, your corporation can save taxes on every income dollar shifted from the over-$25,000 year, up to $25,000 in the other year.

As an illustration, say your corporation anticipates $28,000 of taxable income in 1965 and $20,000 in 1966. If it can shift $3,000 of taxable income from 1965 into 1966, you'll save $780 by this single move.

Next: Timing your expenses.

Navy Will Conduct 20th Annual ROTC Competitive Tests

The 20th annual national competitive examination for the regular Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps (NROTC), will be given Dec. 11, according to announcement of Vice Adm. B. J. Semmes Jr., chief of naval personnel. Eligible high school seniors and graduates should submit applications before Nov. 19.

Designed to supplement the officer output of the Naval Academy, the NROTC program makes it possible for a young man to earn a regular commission while studying at the civilian college of his choice from among the 52 colleges with a regular NROTC unit. All tuition, fees and books are furnished by the Navy, and the student receives a subsistence allowance of $50 per month for not more than four years. During the summers the student goes on training cruises as a midshipman. After successfully completing a bacculaureate level college course, he is commissioned in the regular Navy or Marine Corps and goes on active duty as a career officer with the Navy's modern fleets.

High school seniors and graduates between 17 and 21 years of age may apply for the NROTC aptitude test. Those who make a qualifying score will be interviewed and given a thorough medical examination early in 1966. About 1,600 will be selected to attend college next September.

Application forms are available at local high schools and at the U.S. Navy recruiting station in the Appleton post office.

Two units from the Appleton Fire Department were sent to the George Gerard home, 46 Sherman Place, at 12:10 p.m. Sunday when fire broke out in a box of rubbish in a garage. Firemen used a booster line in extinguishing the blaze. Minor damage resulted.

Greek Youths Arrested Singing Communist Songs After Rally

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Athens police arrested eight youths Thursday night on charges of violating national security laws by singing Communist resistance songs.

A police spokesman said the youths, 19 to 24, sang outside a police station in an Athens suburb after a leftist rally. Police arrested them when they would not obey an order to disband.

Fourteen other leftists, including a former member of Parliament, were arrested on similar charges on Tuesday. Six are being held for trial and the rest were released.

Fugitive Caught In Chilly Hideout

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A fugitive who escaped while awaiting trial at Manitowoc was captured Sunday hiding behind a refrigerator in his sister's home in suburban West Allis.

Michael Mrotek, 22, Milwaukee, had fled Oct. 13 from Holy Family Hospital in Manitowoc where he had been held after swallowing a knife handle while awaiting trial on burglary charges. Police said an anonymous telephone call led them to the home of Mrotek's sister.

Satellite Failure Halts Space Mission

10 a.m., after a perfect countdown.

"The flight couldn't be finer," the mission control center reported happily as the Atlas leaped away, bathing its pad in a brilliant torrent of flame, and seemed to perform beautifully in its upward thrust.

But spirits fell suddenly six minutes, 20 seconds after the launch, when the Agena should have separated and its own engine sprung to life to drill the spacecraft into a circular orbit.

Loss of Telemetry

"A dramatic loss of telemetry" was reported by mission control and the spokesman said "the situation is not a happy one."

Then, 32 minutes following the blastoff, spokesman Paul Haney said that the Agena was traveling 5,500 miles an hour below its projected speed and may have impacted in the Atlantic.

The Gemini launch crew went ahead with their own countdown, hopeful that tracking stations around the world would find the lost target vehicle.

And the Gemini checkout, part of the most complicated two-rocket countdown ever attempted, still was right on the button when Kraft called for the scrub.

The normally reliable Agena has launched successfully more than 140 U.S. payloads into space, including the Ranger moonshots and the Mariner flights to Mars and Venus. It also has been a workhorse for the nation's military space program, primarily launching reconnaissance shots from Vandenberg Air Forcse Base, Calif.

New Systems

However, for the Gemini 6 mission, the Agena was equipped with several new systems, including engines capable of multiple restart, telemetry links, tracking beacons and the addition of the docking collar into which the Gemini was to be inserted. This particular version of the Agena had never been tested before in flight.

A station in the Canary Islands got no response to its commands to Agena at a time when the craft should have been overhead and when the Australian trackers also failed to make contact, the mission was dead.

If trackers had found the Agena, the possibility had remained that Schirra and Stafford still would be sent aloft, even though the Agena communications system was silent.

Before today, Kraft had said that the astronauts would not be able to link up with the Agena under such conditions. But he added that they could gain valuable information of rendezvous techniques.

The Gemini 6 spacecraft now will be taken down from its rocket and be replaced by Gemini 7, which is being checked out in a hangar here.

Endurance Flight

Astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. are training for a 14-day endurance flight in Gemini 7. This was scheduled for December, but now may be moved up to November.

Gemini 6 then will be rescheduled when another Atlas-Agena combination can be assembled and checked out — in about two months.

During a bright, sunny morning, when the countdown was clicking along smoothly on all the systems involved in the complicated mission, the Gemini launch director, Lt. Col. Jack Albert, reported that "We are as close to the script as we can possibly be."

If Agena had performed, and both rockets had lifted off on time, Schirra and Stafford would have chased the Agena until the fourth orbit, when the flight plan called for a meeting and link over Hawaii late in the afternoon.

Astronauts Disappointed

Disappointed, the astronauts left their space ship shortly after the scrub decision and returned to their quarters.

The flight, when they finally make it, will be a critical one in the U.S. race to the moon. For, when the first Apollo flight goes to the moon, the astronauts must know how to leave their ship in lunar orbit, ride a space cab to the moon's surface, then return and link up with the mother vehicle.

Schirra and Stafford were relaxed and confident as they left their quarters this morning and went to the pad for what was to have been a spectacular double-header launching.

Youngsters Gather Each Sunday around the Rev. Charles Cline, 56, a retired New York and Miami Baptist minister, who preaches to the surfboard set on the beach at Miami Beach. He gets enthusiastic reaction from his audience of 150 to 200, who call him "Holy Joe." (AP Wirephoto)

Brings Word to Youths

'Holy Joe' Preaches To Swinging Parish

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Rev. Charles Cline, 56, retired Baptist minister, has one of the liveliest congregations anywhere.

Each Sunday he delivers a sizzling sermon to the surfboard set on this resort city's South Beach. The kids call him "Holy Joe."

Standing ankle deep in the warm sand, he speaks of "lusts of the flesh," "pitfalls of trial marriage," and "obedience to parents."

He gets boisterous reaction from his sun-bronzed congregation of 150 to 200 youngsters.

"Cool, dad," exults one mop-head with a wide grin. "Keep it up. You got a tiger by the tail."

Wonderful Power

The Rev. Mr Cline keeps smiling, and preaching, and suddenly bends down and with a flourish draws a cross in the sand.

"You want power?" he shouts. "Tie yourself to that and you will have wonderful power."

A grinning kid slips an empty beer bottle into the preacher's little black satchel resting at his feet.

The slender preacher with faded seersucker trousers and much - laundered shirt quotes from the 121st Psalm:

Lord to Keep You

"The Lord will keep your going out and your coming in from this time forth and forevermore."

"I think that is beautiful," said an 18-year-old blonde in a bikini.

"This guy's got guts," said a 15-year-old surfboy. "He used to come out here every Sunday and they'd throw sand and rocks at him, and push him around. He never got mad. I like to listen to this old guy. He says something."

The Rev. Mr. Cline does not pass a collection plate. He says his work is paid for by an independent Baptist missionary group. He formerly served in New York and Miami.

Why does he come to the beach on a hot Sunday?

"I come where the kids are," he smiles.

Saturday to take up a position flanking an estimated 600 guerrillas believed massing for an ambush.

The flanking maneuver, plus heavy firepower and bombing and strafing by U.S. jet planes, combined to throw back the guerrillas. But the Viet Cong overran a ranger unit guarding the rear of the column, destroyed five trucks and damaged two howitzer cannon.

U.S. planes also hammered at guerrilla positions around the Plei Me camp. A U.S. military spokesman said American and Vietnamese pilots had flown 489 missions against the attackers since Tuesday.

Observed by Kennedy

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., observed the Plei Me battle during a flight over the central highlands with three other U.S. legislators.

In other action, a guerrilla force of undetermined size inflicted heavy casualties on a Vietnamese army unit based at a camp about 65 miles southwest of Saigon, in the Mekong Delta.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division said they killed or wounded 21 Viet Cong in the central highlands. No U.S. casualties were reported during the search and clear operation 18 miles northeast of An Khe.

New fighting was reported at Pru Yet, where an operation started Oct. 12 to protect the rice harvest. Late reports said a Vietnamese ranger battalion command post had been overrun.

Dominican Revolutionary party.

The predawn operation involved a sizable portion of the inter-American force. Three shots rang out during the first phase of the operation but no casualties were reported.

There were angry mutterings from civilians in the downtown sector. Luis Lembert Pegueros, a ranking official of ex-President Juan Bosch's Dominican Revolutionary party, told a reporter:

"I had thought the Americans were coming in to clean up the Dominican troops, but now it appears that the remedy is worse than the cure."

Leftist extremists in the rebel sector have been urging a general strike to force out both foreign troops and Dominican military leaders.

Rhodesians Preparing to Greet Wilson

Smith has demanded immediate independence from Britain for the colony to preserve white rule. Wilson, under heavy Commonwealth and United Nations pressure, insists on safeguards to insure the black majority power eventually.

Will Meet Nationalists

Wilson has indicated he intends to have interviews also with African nationalist leaders Joshua Nkomo and Ndabangingi Sithole, and other spokesmen for various groups. Nkomo and Sithole are confined in government restriction camps.

Sithole Sunday predicted violence and bloodshed if Smith declares independence.

"It will be the end of hope for Africans and after that they will cease all restraint," he declared.

Bomb Threats Stop Two Airline Flights

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — FBI agents investigated today telephoned bomb threats directed at two Eastern Air Lines flights.

A Miami-New York flight, No. 72, was diverted to Jacksonville, Fla., Sunday night after a call was received at Miami that a bomb was aboard.

A second call received at Charlotte, N.C., forced a search of a Chicago-New York flight, No 605. The flight was searched at its regularly scheduled stop at Raleigh. No bomb was found.

Eastern Airlines officials said the calls were made by two different persons.

THE POST-CRESCENT

Monday, October 25, 1965

Saved by the Bell

Senator Edward Kennedy's emotional, eleventh hour move to send back to committee the appointment of Francis Morrissey to the federal bench proved that the young senator is gaining some political acumen. For a while during the controversy it appeared that President Johnson in appointing Morrissey had succeeded in handsomely winning another under-the-table struggle with the Kennedys.

The Committee on the Federal Judiciary of the American Bar Association took such a dim view of the possibility of Morrissey's aspirations for the post several years ago that President John F. Kennedy never made the appointment. Morrissey had flunked law courses and the Massachusetts bar exam twice before he went off to a diploma mill in Georgia and in three months he was admitted to the practice of law in Georgia. Apparently he never did practice there either because he realized the whole thing was a mistake or because he didn't find a case. Instead he went back to Boston and ran for the state legislature although he certainly had not been an "inhabitant" of Massachusetts during the previous year as the law required. Unsuccessful in that campaign, Morrissey went back to law school and eventually did pass the necessary examinations. Almost from that time on, he became a good friend of the Kennedys, father and son.

The A.B.A. committee called the appointment the worst judicial prospect in a decade. "From the standpoint of legal training, legal experience and legal ability, we have not had any case where these factors were so lacking," said an A.B.A. official.

Nevertheless Senator Teddy Kennedy leaped into the fray for Morrissey and seemed on the verge of success when he in effect killed the nomination. Somehow it must have become clear to him that, as The New York Times put it, Morrissey would be "an albatross around his neck" for a long time to come. The President, by making the appointment, had wordlessly given the impression that he was doing it out of respect for the memory of the assassinated president. Then he went off to the hospital, secure in the belief that young Teddy would pick up the ball and carry it toward the wrong goal line.

It almost worked. We rather hope Senator Dirksen was wrong when he said the withdrawal was Senator Teddy's "finest hour." But it did show a sign of growing political maturity.

The Air Pollution Law

The first bill signed with full ceremony by President Johnson since his operation carries the impressive and long-winded title, the Clear Air Act Amendment and Solid Waste Disposal Act. In simple language part of it will require new automobiles sold in the United States after September 1, 1967, to carry devices which will restrict the amount of carbon monoxide and unburned hydrocarbons now being spewed into the air we breathe.

The new law does not set standards which are supposed to be determined before the target date by the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. The Automobile Manufacturers Association has already announced that it would cooperate with the government in drawing up the standards.

Air pollution has become one of the most serious problems of our modern society. Studies have shown it to be at least equally guilty with nicotine for the increase in lung cancer. Deaths from one respiratory disease jumped 800 per cent in the thirty years between 1930 and 1960. Lesser respiratory ailments are also encouraged by polluted air, and distress for those allergic to various substances is serious. Warm, humid, windless days in large cities have become extremely disagreeable and it is not the heat or the humidity but the smell.

Certainly automobiles are not the only cause of such pollution. Many large cities, including Green Bay, have ordinances restricting industrial air pollution. But the problem needs attacking on a variety of fronts.

California this year made effective a law requiring exhaust control devices on all new cars sold in the state. Arizona recently threw out such a law but it was the operation rather than the aim that needed an overhaul. This would appear to be an obvious place for federal regulation, since air pollution does not recognize state or municipal borders. The automobile, by which most of our mobile society speeds from one community and region to another, is a sound place to start.

In his remarks on the bill, President Johnson quoted the late Rachel Carson. "In biological history, no organism has survived long if its environment became in some way unfit for it, but no organism before man has deliberately polluted its own environment." The current research into water pollution indicates that man may not be able to undo some of that which he has done but certainly he can call a halt to despoiling his environment further.

Costs of the devices probably will raise the price of an automobile somewhere between $20 and $45. The costs of pollution cannot be reckoned only in cash but they amount to a lot more than that for every American whether he drives a car or not. With all its discoveries, science has not yet found how we can live and not breathe.

Presidential Politics in the Congo

President Kasavubu of the Congo has simply dropped Moise Tshombe from his position as premier. The move was not unexpected but the problem was not that Tshombe was a failure in his role. Instead it was his success that was a serious drawback to his continuance in the government of Kasavubu.

Kasavubu explained it very simply to a joint session of Parliament. "The mission I conferred upon him in 1964 has been completed. Therefore, out of respect for the habitual rules of democracy and since his government has not resigned on its own initiative, I have today put an end to its functions." In a new, but not unusual, interpretation of democratic procedure, Kasavubu is trying to sabotage what is almost certain to be Tshombe's try for Kasavuba's own position in next year's elections.

As premier, Tshombe managed to gain confidence enough to rally the Congolese Army, hire white mercenaries and stop the drive of the Red-inspired Congo rebels. But as his popularity increased, so did Kasavubu's concern over his own status.

However, there are signs that Kasavubu himself is not a fool. Since he did not want to affront Katangans, he appointed as Tshombe's successor Evariste Kimba, also a Katangan who had been foreign minister in the Katangan secessionist government and who had gone into exile with Tshombe when Katanga's bid for independence was defeated by United Nations forces. Kimba and Tshombe had split earlier but not with much animosity.

Furthermore, Kasavubu, now attending the heads of state conference of the Organization of African Unity in Accra, Ghana, is being accepted by other black Africans as one of them. Tshombe was instead portrayed as a stooge of the colonial masters in his efforts to bring about Katangan independence and in his use of white mercenaries to defeat the Congo rebels. But the leaders of other African nations, once outspoken at least in their vocal support of the rebels, have lost enthusiasm. In the first place, the rebels have been pretty well dispersed although a few thousand still control a part of the Congo. But the evidence of Red Chinese influence in the rebel movement has caused alarm among African politicians who want to run their own affairs. Few of them risk denunciations of the Chinese since that would seem to go along with the American line. But no one has said a word about Kimba's former ties with the secessionist movement in Katanga or that white mercenaries are still bottling up the rebels.

Tshombe meanwhile has rejected Kimba's invitation to take part in a coalition cabinet in the Congo and instead will lead the opposition. Next February's elections will show whether the ins or the outs appeal most to the voters.

Looking Backward

Appeal to Outagamie Democrats

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for Oct. 28, 1865.

Don't forget that the last day in this County for voters to get registered is Tuesday next, Oct. 31st. Are you registered? Is your neighbor registered?

It is now stated, and we think from good authority, that our political opponents have decided to make no nominations in Outagamie this fall. They have made up their minds to an avalanche. Don't fail them.

Because the field has yielded, redouble your efforts for the State Democratic Ticket. Many may think it will be of no consequence for them to vote, that the result will be all one way.

Overweening confidence may cost us the entire State Ticket and the State Senator!

In 1857, if the Democrats of Outagamie had voted in force, Cross would have been elected governor instead of Randall and the great Swamp Land Steal would have been prevented.

The work to be done now is to labor to get 600 majority for the State Ticket and the State Senator. That majority is here. Get it out on election

In Perspective:

President Owes It to Himself, Nation to Take Long Vacation

BY MAX FREEDMAN

WASHINGTON — If President Johnson wanted to satisfy the wishes of the American people, he would go to his ranch in Texas, on leaving the hospital, and then would do as little as possible until the opening of the next session of Congress. But this will not happen. The nature of the Presidency, the endless anxieties of the world scene, the temperament of the President himself, all these combine to make this calculated inactivity an idle counsel of perfection. There will be no complete rest: only interludes of calm broken by spasms of intense effort.

Freedman

The benevolent conspiracy on the part of his staff and his cabinet to keep troublesome problems from his desk will have only fleeting and imperfect success. He is not the kind of man to submit meekly to this discipline, no matter how well-intentioned.

A Pause for Breath

Even under the warning given him by his operation and the resulting fatigue, he will be unable to cast aside the imperious sense of urgency which had dominated his thought and conduct for several decades. He may slow up for a while but it will only be like a hurricane pausing for breath. He has what the French call the defect of his qualities: and resting on his laurels, to use Mark Twain's famous phrase, is neither congenial to his temperament nor consistent with his plans.

A hostile critic would dismiss the President's normal working day as an experiment in frenzied activity. Friends and admirers, who know him much better, prefer to regard this hectic and consuming pace as part of his passion for achievement, the spur of success, the search for excellence. There may be a tremendous amount of dust picked up in the process but things are moving and many programs which we barely touched with our hopes are now woven into our daily lives.

Uses Presidents Powers

For this President has taken as a living commandment the principle that under modern conditions the White House must be the originating center of the American political system, and the President the constant source of executive energy, in Alexander Hamilton's concept, for the entire administration. President Eisenhower may well prove to be the last representative in this century of an older, more demure, more restrained type of Presidential leadership. At all events, we will not have to complain in the next few years that the full powers of the Presidency are being sparingly and casually used. The complaint will almost certainly be that there is too much Presidential leadership rather than too little; and the President will regard that as a compliment that has gone slightly awry.

It has taken some time, in fact, for the American people to learn that the President has a gift for wise passiveness as well as a passion for devouring activity. The members of the Senate have never forgotten his formidable talent for waiting, followed by the sudden pounce and the ultimate victory. President de Gaulle may not be alone among world statesmen in discovering that this fierce power, all the greater for being worn in its scabbard, has not evaporated. It is in the calm season that the President often meditates his thunderbolts, with an instinct for the bull's eye. He too, like Colonel House, can walk on leaves like a tiger without a noise.

Has His Disappointments

Even now, after concentrated months of unremitting publicity, there are still vast hinterlands of the President's spirit obscured from public view. The public does not know of the President's sorrow that his beloved South is moving so slowly to pluck out its rooted legacy of prejudice from its more generous traditions. It does not know of his deep and abiding regret that the effort to organize a permanent peace-keeping force for the inter-American system has faded as the Dominican crisis has lost its tragic intensity. It does not see his grief at the casualties in Viet Nam, a grief which makes obscene and shameful the efforts of a noisy minority eager to picture him as a man of blood indifferent to suffering and responsive only to the grim arguments of power.

There are mystery and aloofness, in short, even in this most accessible of all the Presidents. He may put his arm around you but in the end he walks alone. In the last few days he has looked inwards at his own spirit: he has made the personal inventory which all of us make in the shadow of a serious visit to the hospital. His doctors have given him the chance to have a stronger body. He alone can use these snatched interludes of compulsory leisure to give himself a more composed spirit and a more sedate mind. There should be time on the ranch for those quiet renewals and pilgrimages of the mind that arm even a President for the journey across strenuous days.

Firehouse Gong Survived Horses

LOUISVILLE (AP) — The old firehouse gong has vanished in Louisville.

The bells were rigged outside of stations in the days of horsedrawn firewagons to warn passerbys the rigs were about to dash out.

Horns later supplanted the bells and Maj. Robert O. Catlett, the department's property officer now has ordered the remaining relics dismantled.

Miss Rosemary Salm, rural Neenah student at Wisconsin State College in Oshkosh, was named a member of the homecoming queen's court taking part in the weekend festivities on the Oshkosh campus. Miss Salm was a junior student in the kindergarten-primary division.

Carl J. Schroeder, Appleton, was picked as the lone nominee for governor of the Northeastern Wisconsin District of Rotary International. His election in the coming spring was a formality.

Pfc. Thomas Mackin, Appleton, was stationed in Tokyo where he was an ammunition specialist. A 1953 graduate of Appleton High School, Mackin entered the army in December of that year and arrived in the Far East in November of 1954.

Graft Pervades Every Aspect of Daily Life In Communist Nations

BY HENRY J. TAYLOR

Numerous Russian painters like modernist Naluvajko have left Russia in order to paint abstract pictures. Most have joined Polish painter Zbigniew Kupcynshi in Warsaw, whose abstracts sell for about three-months' salary of a qualified engineer.

Taylor

Their art is hung on the ancient 14th-century Barbican wall. And all state that bribery alone got them out of the U.S.S.R. and bribery let them into Poland.

This is the snake—graft that lives, coils and thrives on an unheralded scale throughout the Red Eden.

The graft spreads and mounts and has passed the point of no return. It is established and crystalized in nearly everything. And it ranks with the biggest untold stories of the Communist world.

Graft lit the fuse that blew under Nikita Khrushchev's son-in-law, Izvestia editor Alexi Adzhubei, and thus wafted at Khrushchev himself in the showdown that ousted him.

KINDLED RECENT SHAKEUP

Western intelligence knows that graft kindled the Kremlin's recent economic shakeup. The mess brought Soviet Deputy Premier Veniamin E. Dymshits, chairman of the State Committee for Materials and Technical Supply, into a dogfight with Commissar Nikolai K. Baibokov.

Baibokov is chairman of the State Planning Committee in the immense, overlapping bureaucracy and is reportedly enmeshed in the mess with Commissar Vladimir N. Novikov, who is supposed to supervise the industrial ministres.

In all totalitarian regimes power feasts on the same fare — graft and corruption. Amazingly, it can even be monitored now on the Soviet radio—although the reason for the mentions remain unknown a full-grow mystery.

The U.S. Army operates a monitoring station in a former Nazi installation at Pullach, Bavaria, near Dachau. A recent Moscow broadcast dealing with the housing shortage (chronic) admitted:

Whole families in good health are living in Moscow hospitals. More than 7,000 healthy people occupy the dearly needed hospital space, 750 in Gradsky hospital alone. They must move. One family of three got into Gradsky when an official friend claimed that their grandfather was a chemist there before the Russo-Japanese war, 60 years ago."

Traditionally, French intelligence is the best in Czechoslovakia. Red President Antonin Novotny of Czechoslovakia, lush as a Persian cat, sits in medieval Hradshin Castle, king-like and remote. French intelligence lists him as the best-bribed man in the satellite states.

When I was in Berlin two Czech defectors, in turn, one of the S.T.B. (Statni Bezpecnost) Security Police, the other from the O.B.Z. (Obranne Zpravodajstvi), its military counterpart, cofirmed to French intelligence that they gave all their salary to their boss and lived on half the graft they extracted themselves. The other half, too, "went upstairs."

The Central Labor Office of the Czech Communist party handles the military draft. Each youth must serve 18 months compulsory military service—but not if you can afford a kickback to the S.T.B. or O.B.Z. An estimated half of the students at Prague's Charles University got there exactly that way.

Then the kickback starts all over again with the procurement of books and sometimes even the selection of classes. For everything that is not compulsory in the curriculum is prohibited.

It is everywhere agreed throughout the satellite countries that you get an apartment when you're on the list (the housing shortage again) by graft, and only by graft, or by becoming a police informer, which is a form of it.

U.S. AUTOS INVOLVED

I wrote from Budapest how American automobiles show up in Red Hungary. The supply doesn't come from American manufacturers. It comes from Austrian dealers who've bought the cars legally and then can do with them what they please.

They label each automobile a "gift package" and this is the official description on the shipping paper Hungarian custom officials receive. Graft within the Budapest government does the rest.

More than 200 American automobiles have been passed in this way since January. The Budapest salesmen's beautiful commissions are deposited in fake names in Vienna banks. Most of the salesmen, of course, are Red bureaucrats living on this graft.

The quiet, churning poison seeps everywhere in the Red world as a way of daily life and lays in layers, one above the other, from the wretched bottom right straight to the top.

Not Surprising O'Hara Failed as Columnist

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It was scarcely surprising to learn that John O'Hara's weekly newspaper column has been dropped by the paper that hired him. Such mistakes arise from a common confusion in terms.

There is really no such thing as a "writer," generically speaking. Instead, there are men and women who write fiction, poetry, plays, articles, and so forth. Very few of them are adept at more than one form.

Harris

O'Hara is an admirable short story writer, within his limitations. He is an abominable novelist. There was absolutely no reason to believe he could write a column of analysis and comment that would have any merit whatever, indeed, fiction writers are notoriously inept at this.

So great an author as Henry James was a failure at writing plays. His immense talent for novels and short stories forsook him utterly when he tried to create living dramas; his ventures were, quite properly, booed off the stage.

And so brilliant a playwright as Bernard Shaw was equally a failure in his novels. He wrote five of them, all monumentally unsuccessful, before he abandoned the form early in his career and turned to theater.

Thomas Mann, a novelist of heroic proportions, turned into a preacher of commonplaces when he wrote essays of a political and social nature. Lewis Carroll was, of course, magnificent, in the "Alice" books; when he tried serious verse, or the moralizing of a story like "Bruno and Sylvie," he became unbearable.

Conan Doyle, as everyone knows, grew to hate Sherlock Holmes so much that he killed him off; he was convinced that his non-detective novels were his main contribution to literature. But Holmes is immortal and hardly anyone reads Doyle's other books.

Oscar Wilde was sure that his poetry — nearly all of it second-rate if not worse — had some eternal value; but it is his comedies, like "The Importance of Being Ernest," and his fairy tales, that live on, while his poems have fallen into justifiable neglect.

W. S. Gilbert looked with scorn upon his libretti for the Gilbert & Sullivan operettas; but Gilbert's "serious" plays, which he regarded highly, are as dead as Sullivan's "serious" music. Both men, ironically, thought they were too good for the form they were best at.

The term "writer" is as misleading as the term "athlete" — for who would send a baseball pitcher to run in the high hurdles?

Let's EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By-Sylvanus M. Duvall, Ph.D. and Evelyn M. Duvall, Ph.D.

True, according to a recent investigation in a large state university. The more involved and committed the students were, the more conventional their sex standards were. The most permissiveness was found among students who were dating casually. As students began to go steady and then to get engaged and to head toward marriage, their standards became increasingly conservative. Getting close to marriage is a sobering experience that is taken seriously by today's university students.

Can you teach your children to be good Americans?

Yes — No —

Yes, you can and you should. The author of "How to Bring Up Your Child without Prejudice", writes, "The American people have come from many nations, many races, and speak many tongues. To live together in harmony we must learn not only to accept differences in color, religion, and background but also to appreciate differing cultures and heritages. In this task the responsibility rests jointly on the family, school, and church, but primarily on parents." We feel that this is both a responsibility and a privilege as Americans today.

Are older families' incomes secure?

Yes — No —

Yes, they tend to be relatively very secure. A recent "Wall Street Journal" story reports that less than one-third of the earnings of 65-and-over families is in a weekly paycheck. Their incomes are smaller than those of younger families, but safer and more secure. More than half of their total income is from social security and other old-age benefits, which are guaranteed regardless of the ups and downs of the economy.

U.S. Prepared For Long Stay In Viet Nam

Strategist Calls for Clearing Operations For Victory in War

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A top U.S. military man who is mapping strategy against the Viet Cong predicts American combat troops must spend at least a year on major clearing operations to prepare the groundwork for victory.

The strategist, who asked not to be named, emphasized in an interview that the United States is prepared to commit troops as long as necessary.

"It might take three years or maybe 10 or 20 years, as long as the Communists say they are prepared to fight," he said.

This view does not square with the optimism expressed by many U.S. officials here and in Washington. They say the tide already has turned in favor of the South Vietnamese.

Troop Buildup

For the moment, the Communists appear to be undecided on how to cope with the rising display of U.S. land, sea and air power. The troop buildup, now past 140,000, has posed a serious challenge to the Communists.

Intelligence reports here, however, give no indication that the Viet Cong have lost any of their drive or turned from their efforts to gain control of South Viet Nam.

While the Viet Cong have largely avoided major contact with U.S. offensives designed to wrest control of enemy territory, they have shown no shyness in tangling with government soldiers. They have launched battalion and even regimental-size attacks in the past month.

Massing Forces

The guerrillas have been massing large forces in the central coast province of Binh Dinh, where a rice harvest is under way.

The Viet Cong have suffered heavy losses in Binh Dinh and other parts of the country from U.S. air assaults, but there is no solid evidence they are breaking up their big units.

On the other hand, there are increasing reports that the air offensive, especially the B52 Strategic Air Command raids against suspected jungle hideouts, has created a morale problem for the Viet Cong. Fragmentary evidence suggests the Communists are undertaking a major re-evaluation of their tactics to cope with the U.S. buildup.

Accelerate Campaign

In the months ahead, the Viet Cong are expected to accelerate their campaign of terror and sabotage while U.S., South Vietnamese and allied forces combine in gigantic sweep operations of Communist-dominated areas. These operations, which have already begun, will involve thousands of men and last for weeks.

Military planners say they are not discouraged because relatively few Viet Cong are being killed in major ground operations.

They emphasize that the main objective is to penetrate once forbidden territory, win the allegiance of the South Vietnamese who have been under Red domination there and provide a shield to protect them through the rest of the conflict.

How to Succeed in College — Part XV

Success, Failure Up to You

BY LESLIE J. NASON, ED. D.
University of Southern California

So you're in college? How are you getting along? Fine? That's great! — Not so good? That's bad! Either way it's your own doing.

In the admissions officer's opinion, you are capable of doing college work. If you are not succeeding you must be studying ineffectively. Find, and try, different approaches. Avoid crises if possible but, if they occur, meet them intelligently.

To maintain college success you must give it your attention from the very first day until the last. Keep alert! Occasionally ask yourself how well you are doing. Do this on your own initiative without waiting for crises.

Counseling services are available and professors maintain office hours, but too often students fail to make use of either.

First Crisis

The first crisis for many college freshmen is produced by the work load.

College IS different than high school. You will be expected to do more work as the teachers seem to do less work. You will be in class fewer hours and expected to do more work independently.

This is the downfall of many freshmen. They attempt to solve the problem by working longer hours and sleeping less. They can continue this for a few days or even for a few weeks, but finally discouragement sets in and they decide to leave and go home. If you are working too hard, you are not putting your efforts in the right place. For example, 75 per cent of what you learn should be absorbed in the classroom. Here, efficiency will pay big dividends in time saved.

Get Help

An excellent test of your efficiency in learning is how well you comprehend what you hear in class. If your studying has kept your background sufficiently up to date you should be able to follow the presentation of your professor. If following your instructor seems difficult, change your procedure of preparing for listening.

If you are required to take a general course (called "Man and Civilization" in some colleges), take enough time to thoroughly prepare for the lectures. This is difficult material to keep organized and requires more preparation time. Prepare a written outline of each chapter ahead of the lecture. Do this throughout the semester, using the short sentence-type outline. The outline can serve as a skeleton for your class notes and leave your mind free for listening.

If after studying ahead on your own you are still unable to follow your instructor in any course, get help. Another student or a tutor can discuss the advance work with you and put you in a position to learn as you listen.

To master a subject from the very first day and carry it at an A level takes less work than dragging it along at a C level. Keep a firm hold on each course through quick reviews. Every few days precede your study session for a course by asking yourself, "What has this course covered so far and where does it go from here?"

A clear idea of the organization of any course is essential to effective study in and out of class. Through this process the new materials you learn fit naturally into place.

Don't Panic

Don't panic at the first low grade you receive. Perhaps you would have received an A on this paper in high school but this is college. The instructor was not wrong in his grading; you just didn't understand the requirements. Your cue now is to find out not only what was wrong with your paper but what kind of a production receives a higher grade.

The primary source of information in this case is the instructor. Listen intently in class as the papers are returned. Talk to a student or two whose papers received a higher grade. Perhaps they can enlighten you. If necessary confer with the instructor. A counselor or an upperclassman may be willing to work with you until you have acquired the desired skill.

The first college tests shock many students. The tests covered more ground than the short unit tests of high school days. They placed a greater emphasis on the ability to formulate and express ideas. The students often had been in large classes conducted on the lecture system. In such classes they felt safe—they knew they would not be called upon. They had seen no reason to spend time formulating ideas. The books and instructors expressed them clearly.

So, beware! Come examination time you will be tested on your own ability to organize and express ideas. This you must develop yourself.

I suggest that you practice this skill at every opportunity. Here are some suggestions:

While reading assignments stop at the end of each section and put the ideas into your own words.

As you listen in class summarize the ideas in your own words. Make any notes you take short sentences of your own composition.

Take a few minutes at the end of each day to think over the ideas you have gained.

In reviewing for tests practice formulating answers to questions.

Take turns with a fellow student in holding the book and asking questions while the other formulates answers. (Do this as a polishing process after each of you has done his own reviewing.)

Emergency Measures

Meet severe crises with emergency measures. Even though you failed a mid-semester test all is not lost.

The problem you now face is twofold. First, you must get the course straightened out in your own mind; and, second, you must convince your instructor that this has been accomplished.

The following steps have proved successful for many college students.

First, restudy the course from the beginning. Establish evidence of this study by constructing a new notebook consisting of problem solutions, outlines, sketches or other notes. Then make an appointment with your instructor and take along the new notebook. Ask him for clarification of any points on which there is some question. Ask him what else you can do to clarify the subject and bring your work up to standard.

If you follow the suggestions and give college your best effort you will find that the Deans, counselors and the faculty are all on your side, working to help you make a success of college and stay in.

(You can obtain Prof. Nason's expanded booklet by sending $1 to "College Booklet" in care of this newspaper).

The Law and You

Routine to Collect Unpaid Bill From Deceased Debtor

When someone who owes you money dies, the law calls for you to present your bill to his estate. Sometimes the widow or another heir will pay the deceased's debts, though they are still the estate's. Unless the heirs agree to pay, they personally owe you nothing. In effect, while you can inherit someone's estate, you do not inherit his debts.

A solvent estate will pay your claim if it is a valid one. Your claim may have to wait until certain "priority claims" are paid. Or, you may have to take pro rate partial payment where there are not enough assets in the estate to pay all the creditors in full.

The law calls for the county court to order the publication of notice for creditors to make their claims. This notice appears in a local newspaper. The claim must be made within the time fixed by the court and stated in the notice. If not, the claim is forever barred, except for such claims as those for taxes.

Your claim must be in writing on a claim form, which can be obtained from the clerk of the county court. The claim must be accompanied by a verified account. If no objection is made to your claim, the court may allow it and order it paid. But, the court is under no duty to order the claim paid if it feels that the claim is unjust.

The decedent's estate may have assets which are exempt from creditor's claim, such as proceeds from life insurance or a homesteaded residence. The heirs may, but need not, waive the exemption.

The law gives priority to a widow's allowance, to a family allowance, to costs of administering the estate, to medical and funeral expenses, tax claims, and the like. General creditors come next. After the claims have all been allowed, rejected or settled, the court can then begin to distribute the remainder of the estate to the heirs.

Refuse Discussion Offer

No Peace Feeler Seen From North Viet Nam

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever its other results, America's large-scale entry into the Viet Nam war has failed so far to produce a meaningful peace feeler from North Viet Nam.

This report comes from U.S. diplomats, who for six months have searched for any promising Red response to President Johnson's April 7 offer of "unconditional discussions" with the governments concerned.

One reason for the introduction of U.S. combat troops in the South and air attacks on the North, Johnson said at the time, was to make "clear that the only path for reasonable men is the path of peaceful settlement."

Since then the Viet Cong monsoon season offensive has come and gone on a much smaller scale than U. S. officials expected. The beefed-up U S ground forces often gave the guerrillas a bloody nose, and American bombers struck north with regularity.

Now the same Washington sources who once predicted major rethinking by Hanoi this fall are reporting that the Reds seem as determined as ever to sling it out.

If anything, Hanoi may have toughened its line.

A few months ago U.S. policymakers figured North Viet Nam might not be insisting on its four-point plan — which includes a withdrawal of foreign forces and acceptance of the Communist program in the South — as a precondition for talks. Now Red propagandists seem to be demanding the four points as a prerequisite.

This adds up to a gloomy outlook for a diplomatic solution any time soon. Instead, U. S. diplomats expect hard fighting ahead on the military front, and there is more talk about winning the war that way — without a peace conference.

Morale Problem

On the Communist side, morale is a vital problem for Hanoi. The Viet Cong live in greater peril and hardship than their South Vietnamese government opponents.

The will to fight on for a vague and distant reward is the guerrillas' strongest armor, and peace talks could eat into that.

So for the Red leaders, a military solution may continue to be more appealing than the conference table. North Viet Nam is still declaring that the "defeat of U.S. imperialism is beyond question."

And if the tide of battle goes against the Asian Communists, they have room in doctrine and experience for a tactical shift, laying low to strike again later.

Johnson voiced hope April 7 "that peace will come swiftly." At the same time he added:

"But that is in the hands of others besides ourselves. And we must be prepared for a long continued conflict."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X B
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

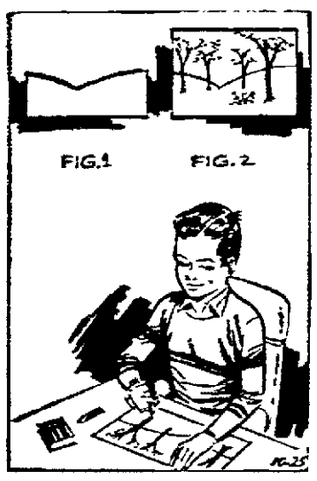
Try a New Kind of Art With Scissors, Paper and Chalk

BY CAPPY DICK

Today's fun-project idea is a way to "paint" pictures without paints or brushes. All you need are pieces of construction paper of various colors, paste and colored chalk.

Decide upon a scene. It may be a scene near your home, or one you see when you go for a ride in the country. With the scene fixed in your mind reproduce it by the easy method described here.



'Paint' the Scenes.

For the sky use a piece of light blue construction paper as large as the finished picture is to be. This piece will be the background upon which all the other colors will be applied.

Use Green Paper

Next cut a piece of green construction paper to represent grass. Remembering the horizon line of the scene you are reproducing, cut the green paper accordingly (Figure 1). Paste it on the bottom half of the blue paper as in Figure 2.

There should be some clouds in the sky, so rub white chalk on the blue paper in cloud shapes. Smudge the chalk by rubbing it gently with your fingers.

Use black or gray chalk to draw the trunks and branches of trees in the foreground of the picture (Figure 2). Put a few streaks of brown chalk on the green grass and smudge them to represent areas of grass that have turned brown.

Use green, orange, brown and yellow chalk to put autumn leaves on the trees, drawing them against the blue sky. Scatter a few spots of the same colors on the green foreground to represent fallen leaves.

Find some pictures of children in a magazine. Cut them out and paste them on the picture to complete it.

Lesson in English

BY W. L. GORDON

Words often misused: Do not say, We cannot express an opinion now as to the utility of this invention. Say, "ABOUT the utility of this invention."

Often mispronounced: Aviator. Pronounce both "a's" as in ate."

Often misspelled: Apostle (an evangelist). Apostil (a marginal note).

Word study. "Use a word three times and it is yours." Let us increase our vocabulary by mastering one word each day. Today's word AUDIOVISUAL, involving both hearing and seeing. "Audiovisual education uses films, slides, phonograph records, and the like, to supplement instruction."

Enlargement of Lymph Gland Not Unusual

BY JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: When our oldest boy, now four, was nine months old, we discovered a lump in his neck. A doctor said it was an enlarged lymph gland. Since then I have had him in for checkups and three different doctors have said the same thing.

The last doctor was the only one who came close to recommending that it be removed, and he said it was up to us to decide, on the basis of whether it would improve his appearance.

Now we have discovered a similar enlarged gland on our eight-month-old boy. If not removed, will these glands harm the boys or turn into cancer? Will the glands get larger? Do you recommend their removal? — Mrs. J. B.

Are you sure you aren't making a mountain out of a lump?

Enlargement of a lymph gland is not unusual in children, and in ordinary circumstances is not alarming. (That is to say, there are ominous diseases which involve the lymph glands, but they are not very frequent, and they are readily diagnosed.)

An enlarged gland is commonly the result of some infection. The gland's purpose is to filter off wastes resulting from the infection, and the gland can swell. It may or may not return gradually toward its original size, but it still is serviceable. It does not "turn into cancer," and aside from being lumpy, is not likely to do any harm.

A succession of doctors have given you the same answer. I wonder whether you have been searching for someone who will give you a different answer and provide an excuse for surgery. I certainly do not recommend removal of an enlarged lymph gland just because it exists.

If the gland continues to enlarge, if other glands show enlargement, if the child has a fever, or there are other signs of focal infection such symptoms as these would call for further investigation, possibly even removal of one node for biopsy, but only if there are significant symptoms.

If the children are healthy, disregard the enlarged glands.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a thickening of the pleura at the bases of both lungs. Will this eventually affect the entire lungs? At times it is painful. — L. M.

This thickening is due to some infection in the past — tuberculosis, pneumonia, pleurisy or whatever. If the infection no longer is active, there will be no further involvement of the lungs.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a 15-year-old girl and only 4 feet 10 and so self-conscious. Everybody calls me "Shorty" or "Little Bit." Boys never ask me to dance at the school hop so I just stay home and cry or watch TV. Is there any exercise or food for growth? My mom is 5 feet 2 and my dad is 5 feet 9. They say I will grow until I am 21 but I think they just don't want to see me cry. They say I cannot take any shots as they can't afford it. — Little Bit

"Little Bit," I don't think there is anything that will make you grow faster than the Good Lord intended — no exercises, no special foods. And shots would be a waste of time and money.

At 15 it is quite possible that you will grow some more although not until you are 21.

But from all the plaintive letters I get from boys who are only about 5 feet or so, I'm sure that girls your size must have been put on earth to make such boys happy.

Heredity has more than anything else to do with height — so there must have been some short and some tall and some average people for as long as the world has existed.

Music Lovers Rejoice; Big Night Ahead

BY TV SCOUT

8-9 — Channels 4-5 — It's a big night for music lovers with two fine offerings. The Andy Williams Show has an unusually good outing (and the series maintains a high standard) with Gig Young, Nanette Fabray and the Righteous Brothers as guests. Young may surprise some people with his musical talent as he sings "Trouble" from "The Music Man." Andy and Nan sing "Make a Friend" and illustrate how you meet people in a park, on a ship and in a coin-laundry. The finale is a Western skit, "Barefoot in the Heat," with Andy as a rainmaker who has his own private shower follow him around. (Color)

9-10 — Channels 2-12 — Vivacious Eydie Gorme brightens up The Steve Lawrence Show which has lots of good singing. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence, a pleasant, talented pair, sing "This Could Be the Start of Something Big," and a fine medley of Cole Porter and Richard Rodgers songs. Eydie solos "Shall We Danceu" and "My Funny Valentine" and Steve sings "Something's Gotta Give," "I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face," and "Love is Here to Stay."

6:30-7 — Channels 4-5 — Pretty and pert Petula Clark is the hostess of Hullabaloo, and along the way she sings (surprise) "Downtown," "I Know a Place," "Round Every Corner." The other guests, introduced by this tiny English lady are Sam the Sham and the Pharaohs, The Toys, Kim Weston, Noel Harrison (Rex's son) and Patrick Adiarte, the show's lead dancer, making his singing debut. (Color)

7:30-8 — Channels 2-7-12 — The Lucy Show is utter nonsense, but he warned, if you watch, you'll laugh. Ann Southern returns as penniless Countess Framboise, who asks Lucy to help her take care of Oil Well, a horse the Countess has inherited. Naturally the girls sneak the animal into Lucy's apartment (they can't aford the stable bill), but the unexpected happens when the vet announces that "he" is pregnant. (Color)

7:30-8 — Channels 4-5 — Dr. Kildare concludes its little epic about the virile movie star who is ashamed of his disease, cirrhosis, because he wants to light up the sky with his extinction. It's Kildare's problem to effect in the man a wish for a slow, sad death rather than a short, happy life. (Color)

8-8:30 — Channels 11-6-9 — "Obion — 1866" on A Man Called Shenandoah sounds like a file number for a secret project. But it's an absorbing look in the life of our amnesiac hero as he meets another man from his past. This time it's Claude Akins, whose fear of Shenandoah (Robert Horton) is obvious, and who turns him into a sheriff as a wanted killer.

8:30-9 — Channels 11-6-9 — THAT wedding is only three days away and The Farmer's Daughter is moving her things into Glen's bedroom. While Glen's friend is warning him women like to blend things, Katy's friends are helping her buy blended bathroom and closet accessories and move Glen's furniture into inconvenient places. (Color)

9-10 — Channels 4-5-7 — Run for Your Life has hero Paul Bryan (Ben Gazzara) in Spain while the plane he is flying is being repaired. There, during the Pamplona "running of the builS," he meets an old flame (Janine Gray) who may or may not be a spy for "them." (Color)

9-10 — Channels 11-6-9 — Ben Casey, if it gets just a little bit more ridiculous, will be the best comedy show on television. Ben is still glowering at a pretty social worker, fighting with Franchot Tone, being tough on Jim McMullan, whose fiancee (Marion Mason) is going off to an insane asylum, and trying to find out who is stealing hospital property.
